The Courtship of Sea Creatures Jean-Pierre Otte, 2001 After observing the sexual strategies of garden flowers and insects in Love in the Garden Jean Pierre Otte turns his attention to the intimate lives of the creatures he finds at the seashore He arrives at the shore with a heightened awareness of every dank odor the rustle of water and the changing light of the vast sky Thrusting his hands into a transparent tidal pool he is off on another round of observations His interest is very precise the sexuality of sea creatures from crabs to shrimp and even seaweed His viewpoint is ironic witty poetic and wise He finds sea urchins in congregations of indifferent promiscuity He describes the melancholy of lobsters who must mate in armor We find ourselves inside a mussel's shell as it dreams in the heart of a wet and oblong darkness On oysters he begins Any experience with the sea is useless if it does not miraculously take us back to the universe of women who preserve the great original rhythms the oceanic and lunar cycles We are even led to imagine the modest voluptuousness felt by seaweed in the simple pleasure of being alive in motion and joyful In observing the abundant primitive forms of life around him he says When filled with wonder one always opens up again to the universe and at the same time to one's universe In a final scene on the beach he shares an intense sexually charged moment with a woman as they open and ingest some of these creatures which have been the object of his scrutiny the subject of his musings and the inspiration of his layered poetic language We are brought face to face with the universal desire for connection in the ironic ending to a book full of wisdom and hope The Animal Mating Game Ann Downer, 2016-10-01 Birds do it bees do it penguins do it and orangutans do it By having sex and giving birth to offspring animals ensure that their species will survive into the next generation And in this quest for survival animals go to great lengths Some animal mating techniques may strike you as strange or gross but to the animals themselves these practices are essential Animals with the best strategies for choosing mates and making babies ensure that their species live on Without animal sex there would be no animal life Courtship in the Animal Kingdom Mark Jerome Walters, 1989

Courting Chaos Kevin Durrant,2021-09-01 How are we meant to understand the worsening ecological crisis and how do we discover God s presence within it These are questions Courting Chaos explores with the help of Scripture art and poetry Focusing particularly on the writings of Jeremiah this book sees parallels between the looming threat of Babylonian invasion which hung over the people of Judah and our own global predicament Because it offered a hope that would survive the chaos of defeat and exile the book of Jeremiah is presented as a spiritual resource for us today as we face living with an increasingly unstable climate Courting Chaos weaves together the teaching of Jeremiah with the linked ministries of Jonah and Jesus each of whom came through the chaotic waters of death to deliver a message of hope

Combining this with arresting works of art and poetry and his own struggles since participating in a pilgrimage to the 2015 Paris Climate Conference the author thoughtfully applies biblical theology to our current ecological situation Glow
