Office of Publications, 1980 Internet Web Essentials Ernest Ackermann, Karen Hartman, 2001 County Business Patterns, Maryland, 1977 Behind the Label Edna Bonacich, Richard Appelbaum, 2000-06-28 In a study crucial to our understanding of American social inequality Edna Bonacich and Richard Appelbaum investigate the return of sweatshops to the apparel industry especially in Los Angeles The new sweatshops they say need to be understood in terms of the decline in the American welfare state and its strong unions and the rise in global and flexible production Apparel manufacturers now have the incentive to move production to wherever low wage labor can be found while maintaining arm's length contractual relations that protect them from responsibility The flight of the industry has led to a huge rise in apparel imports to the United States and to a decline in employment Los Angeles however remains a puzzling exception in that its industry employment has continued to grow to the point where L A is the largest center of apparel production in the nation Not only the availability of low wage immigrant often undocumented workers but also the focus on moderately priced fashion sensitive women's wear makes this possible Behind the Label examines the players in the L A apparel industry including manufacturers retailers contractors and workers evaluating the maldistribution of wealth and power The authors explore government and union efforts to eradicate sweatshops while limiting the flight to Mexico and elsewhere and they conclude with a description of the growing antisweatshop movement Los Angeles Times Best Nonfiction Book of 2000 Nontimber Forest Products in the United States Eric T. Jones, Rebecca Jean McLain, James F. Weigand, 2002 A quiet revolution is taking place in America's forests Once seen primarily as stands of timber our woodlands are now prized as a rich source of a wide range of commodities from wild mushrooms and maple sugar to hundreds of medicinal plants whose uses have only begun to be fully realized Now as timber harvesting becomes more mechanized and requires less labor the image of the lumberjack is being replaced by that of the forager This book provides the first comprehensive examination of nontimber forest products NTFPs in the United States illustrating their diverse importance describing the people who harvest them and outlining the steps that are being taken to ensure access to them As the first extensive national overview of NTFP policy and management specific to the United States it brings together research from numerous disciplines and analytical perspectives such as economics mycology history ecology law entomology forestry geography and anthropology in order to provide a cohesive picture of the current and potential role of NTFPs The contributors review the state of scientific knowledge of NTFPs by offering a survey of commercial and noncommercial products an overview of uses and users and discussions of sustainable management issues associated with ecology cultural traditions forest policy and commerce They examine some of the major social economic and biological benefits of NTFPs while also addressing the potential negative consequences of NTFP harvesting on forest ecosystems and on NTFP species populations Within this wealth of information are rich accounts of NTFP use drawn from all parts of the American landscape from the Pacific Northwest to the Caribbean From honey production to a review of nontimber forest economies still active in the United States such as the Ojibway harvest of plants recounted here the book takes in the whole breadth of recent NTFP issues including ecological concerns associated with the expansion of NTFP markets and NTFP tenure issues on federally managed lands No other volume offers such a comprehensive overview of NTFPs in North America By examining all aspects of these products it contributes to the development of more sophisticated policy and management frameworks for not only ensuring their ongoing use but also protecting the future of our forests
