International Relations and Heritage Rodrigo Christofoletti, Maria Leonor Botelho, 2021-08-30 Patchwork in times of plurality encompasses the multitude of actions as a revealing symbol of ethos actors organisms and manifestations of preservation and dialogue frontiers This plural metaphor almost like a patchwork aggregates and yet segregates conforms but disfigures and boosts the meanings which represent this new field that international relations have been recently crossing Just like the mirror metaphor that reflects everything to all and sometimes intervenes in distortions the patchwork analogy allowed the book to take responsibility for the disclosure of preservation actions on a global scale The book has a pioneering role insofar since it is the only publication with such characteristics concerns and coverage The work studies the interconnection between cultural properties and international relations by understanding them as a mosaic before the bridges that intertwine people and borders The main goal of this work is to illustrate in what way intergovernmental relations have been privileging heritage and culture as acting fields for its broader needs Therefore the book addresses topics related to the international agenda focusing on its less debated themes Two examples of these undervalued matters are the link between actors preservationist actions and the universe of world cultural heritage The book also pursues a critical dialogue between interdisciplinary fields that narrow heritage frontiers in search to contribute with a spectrum of academic perspectives and inter national study cases To serve distinct economic social or political purposes institutionalized heritage embodied by different values becomes instrumentalized in a top down direction In a development frame when we perceive culture as indispensable to human life the past is transformed into exchange currency Through the creation of alternative fields of action usually in a bottom up

Reclaiming a Plundered Past Magnus T. Bernhardsson, 2013-08-21 The looting of the Iraqi National Museum in April of 2003 provoked a world outcry at the loss of artifacts regarded as part of humanity's shared cultural patrimony But though the losses were unprecedented in scale the museum looting was hardly the first time that Iraqi heirlooms had been plundered or put to political uses From the beginning of archaeology as a modern science in the nineteenth century Europeans excavated and appropriated Iraqi antiquities as relics of the birth of Western civilization Since Iraq was created in 1921 the modern state has used archaeology to forge a connection to the ancient civilizations of Mesopotamia and or Islamic empires and so build a sense of nationhood among Iraqis of differing religious traditions and ethnicities This book delves into the ways that archaeology and politics intertwined in Iraq during the British Mandate and the first years of nationhood before World War II Magnus Bernhardsson begins with the work of British archaeologists who conducted extensive excavations in Iraq and sent their finds to the museums of Europe He then traces how Iraqis growing sense of nationhood led them to confront the British over antiquities law and the division of archaeological finds between Iraq and foreign excavators He shows how Iraq's control over its archaeological patrimony was directly tied to the balance of political power and how it increased as power shifted to the Iraqi government Finally he examines how Iraqi leaders including Saddam Hussein have used archaeology and history to legitimize the state and its political actions
