on a very specific set of structural elements which can be found in all such cultures Legal cultures are a product of and impacted by certain fundamental and commonly shared ideas on and expectations of the law In all modern societies these ideas are to a certain degree institutionalized or at least embedded in institutionalized practices These practices determine the way lawyers are educated and apply the law how they engage with the ongoing internationalization of law and what kind of values they adhere to Looking at these elements separately enables the reader to identify similarities and differences and to explain them contextually Understanding these general features of legal cultures can help avoid misunderstandings or misinterpretations of foreign law and its application Accordingly this handbook is a necessary starting point for all kinds of legal comparative studies conducted by academics students judges and other legal practitioners Optimize English

more critical perspectives being given little voice in mainstream EU studies From the standpoint of legal reasoning Gerard Conway offers the first sustained critical assessment of how the ECJ engages in its function and offers a new argument as to how it should engage in legal reasoning He also explains how different approaches to legal reasoning can fundamentally change the outcome of case law and how the constitutional values of the EU justify a different approach to the dominant method of the ECJ

Europeanization of Judicial Review Nicola Ch. Corkin, 2014-11-13 Europeanization of Judicial Review argues that the higher complexity of the political framework in which laws are made today leads to less well designed laws and loop holes allowing politicians to leave decisions to the courts The higher complexity of the political framework is a result of the need in the EU to consider both national and European legal and political rules when phrasing new laws Both to decrease the complexity in the design of legislation and to preserve the ideal of the rule of law the courts now are more likely to rule laws unconstitutional The book employs a wide range of quantitative and qualitative methods to collect new data about the German Austrian and Italian constitutional courts over the last four decades These three courts have a comparable history theoretical background and structure while differing in two key components length of EU membership and legitimacy perception Corkin employs multi method research based on over fifty interviews with judges politicians and civil servants content analysis of abstract judicial review cases over three decades and a database of over 300 variables relating to the courts and their surroundings Her data reveals that in abstract judicial review and in the wider political arena political culture has become more confrontational due to attitude changes in politicians and judges These attitude changes can be directly linked to the EU and have wide ranging implications for legitimacy democracy and political methodology Presenting a bridge between the revitalized realist and legalist debate Europeanization of Judicial Review will contribute to socio legal theory literature on comparative courts and both new institutionalism and Europeanization theory
