Encyclopedia of Interior Design Joanna Banham, 1997-05 First published in 1997 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company

The Great Exhibition of 1851 Jeffrey A. Auerbach, 1999-01-01 The book challenges the common view that the Exhibition symbolized peace progress prosperity and the emergence of an industrial middle class Auerbach suggests instead that the Great Exhibition became a cultural battlefield on which proponents of different visions of industrialization modernization and internationalism fought for ascendancy in the struggle for a new national identity BOOK JACKET The Cosmopolitan Interior Judy Neiswander, 2008 Judith Neiswander explains that during these years liberal values individuality cosmopolitanism scientific rationalism the progressive role of the elite and the emancipation of women informed advice about the desirable appearance of the home In the period preceding the First World War these values changed dramatically advice on decoration became more nationalistic in tone and a new goal was set for the interior to raise the British child by the British hearth Neiswander traces this evolving discourse within the context of current writing on interior decoration writing that it is much more detached from social and political issues of the day BOOK JACKET

Fringe, Frog and Tassel Annabel Westman, 2020-01-14 The first survey of the history design and use of trimmings in the historic interior in Britain and Ireland which will become the standard work on the subject Trimmings have always provided a visual feast for the eye an essential element in the grandeur and elegance of the interior and a major expense in the complete ensemble This book will be a chronological survey of furnishing trimmings in the historic interior in Britain and Ireland and will examine the history design and use of tassels fringe gimp cord and braid woven lace from 1320 1970 Lavishly illustrated using new photography the images will support a substantial text with references to extensive documentation including inventories bills sale catalogs and other primary sources The importance of the laceman the maker of these trimmings will also be examined within an economic and social context together with his relationship to the upholsterer The first of its kind this publication will be the ultimate authority on the subject Fertile Fortune James Miller, 2006-05-25 Situated on a ridge overlooking the beautiful Land Yeo Valley Tyntesfield is one the last remaining examples of a great country house built in the Victorian High Gothic style It survives intact with visitors able to view an unrivalled collection of Victorian decorative arts experience an insight into life below stairs and see a sumptuously decorated private chapel Each year thousands of visitors come through its doors and since its acquisition by the National Trust in 2002 it has become one of the jewels in the Trust's crown But behind the house there exists the fascinating story of the Gibbs family Fertile Fortune reveals their history and how each generation stamped its own identity on the house and estate William Gibbs came from an Exeter merchant family His company began to export guano from the offshore Pacific islands These bird droppings rich in nitrate proved a godsend as fertiliser for British farmers A fortune was made and Tyntesfield built in 1864 Filled with stunning images of Tyntesfield and descriptions of some of the arts held within its walls Fertile Fortune is both a fascinating read and a pictorial tour of the house The Public Art Museum in Nineteenth Century Britain Christopher Whitehead, 2017-03-02 During the mid nineteenth century a debate arose over the form and functions of the public art museum in Britain Various occurrences caused new debates in Parliament and in the press about the purposes of the public museum which checked the relative complacency with which London's national collections had hitherto been run This book examines these debates and their influence on the development of professionalism within the museum trends in collecting and tendencies in museum architecture and decoration In so doing it accounts for the general development of the London museums between 1850 and 1880 with particular reference to the National Gallery This involves analysis of art display and its relations with art historiography alongside institutional and architectural developments at the British Museum the South Kensington Museum and the National Gallery It is argued that the underpinning factor in all of these developments was a reformulation of the public museum's mission which was in turn related to the electoral reform movement In a potential situation of mass enfranchisement the masses should be well educated the museum was openly identified as a useful institution in this sense This consideration also influenced approaches to collecting and arranging artworks and to configuring their architectural setting within the museum allowing for displays to be instructive in specific ways Dissatisfaction with the British Museum and National Gallery buildings and their locations led to proposals to move the national collections possibly merging and redefining them Again the socio political usefulness of the museum was key in determining where the national collections should be housed and in what form of building This rich debate is analysed with full references to the various forums in and out of Parliament Part one covers these issues in a thematic structure examining all of the national collections their interrelationships and their gradual development of discrete yet sometimes arbitrary museological territories Part two focuses on the individual case of the National Gallery observing how museological debate was brought to bear on the development of a specific institution Every architectural development and redisplay is closely analysed in order to gauge the extent to which the products of debate were carried through into practice and to comprehend the reasons why no museological grand project emerged in London

A Cultural History of Furniture in the Age of Empire and Industry Christina M. Anderson, Catherine L. Futter, 2024-05-07 A Cultural History of Furniture presents an authoritative survey from ancient times to the present The set of six volumes spans 4 500 years of furniture in its physical social and cultural context Each volume discusses the same themes in its nine chapters Designs and Motifs Makers Making and Materials Types and Uses the Domestic Setting the Public Setting Exhibition and Display Furniture and Architecture Visual Representations and Verbal Representations A Cultural History of Furniture in the Age of Empire and Industry Catherine L. Futter, Christina M. Anderson, 2022-02-24 The 19th century in Western culture was a time of both confidence and turbulence Industrial development produced a growing middle class as well as efficiency convenience and innovation across a range of fields from engineering to architecture Alongside these improvements the century began with the extended period of the Napoleonic Wars and was further disrupted by rebellions and revolutions both within Europe and in India South America and other parts of the world Slavery was abolished and urbanization increased dramatically These myriad developments were reflected throughout the period in the proliferation of types of furniture along with their categorization as industrial art at the international exhibitions and world fairs and the increasingly adventurous range of materials that were sometimes used in their construction Nonetheless a strong antiquarian historicist strand also prompted interest in the revival of past styles in areas of art and design including furniture Drawing upon a wealth of visual and textual sources this volume of A Cultural History of Furniture presents essays that examine key characteristics of the furniture of the period on the themes of design and motifs makers making and materials types and uses the domestic setting the public setting exhibition and display furniture and architecture visual representations and verbal representations
