Baby Boomer Health Dynamics Andrew V. Wister, 2005-01-01 Are the baby boomers in Canada more or less healthy than previous generations What are the implications of this for the national health care system Baby Boomer Health Dynamic responds to the growing interest in the generation that makes up over one third of the Canadian population the largest segment of society with the leading edge reaching their sixty fifth birthday in 2011 and eighty five by 2031 Focusing on four health behaviours that have been proven to be major risk factors for disease smoking unhealthy exercise obesity and heavy drinking Andrew V Wister researches the long term implications of several key lifestyle health conundrums most notably the paradoxical relationship in the concurrent trends over the last two decades of increased exercise levels and a significant rise in obesity This invariably leads to questions about the eating habits of North Americans and in particular the quantity and quality of fast food and convenience food consumption Recent public declarations by a number of health organizations and institutes that we are experiencing an obesity crisis and moreover that obesity is the new tobacco makes Baby Boomer Health Dynamics both timely and topical

Medical Sociology and Old Age Paul Higgs, Ian Rees Jones, 2009-01-13 The nature of health in later life has conventionally been studied from two perspectives Medical sociologists have focused on the failing body chronic illness infirmity and mortality while social gerontologists on the other hand have focused on the epidemiology of old age and health and social policy By examining these perspectives Higgs and Jones show how both standpoints have a restricted sense of contemporary ageing which has prevented an understanding of the way in which health in later life has changed In the book the authors point out that the current debates on longevity and disability are being transformed by the emergence of a fitter and healthier older population This third age where fitness and participation are valorised leads to the increasing salience of issues such as bodily control age denial and anti ageing medicine By discussing the key issue of old age versus ageing the authors examine the prospect of a new sociology a sociology of health in later life Medical Sociology and Old Age is essential reading for all students and researchers of medical sociology and gerontology and for anyone concerned with the challenge of ageing populations in the twenty first century This book is essential reading for all students and researchers of medical sociology and gerontology

Baby Boomers of Color Melvin Delgado, 2014-12-09 Because researchers often treat baby boomers of color as belonging to one group quality data on the individual status of specific racial populations is lacking leading to insufficiently designed programs policies and services The absence of data is a testament to the invisibility of baby boomers of color in society and deeply affects the practice of social work and other helping professions that require culturally sensitive approaches Melvin Delgado rectifies this injustice by providing a comprehensive portrait of the status and unique assets of boomers of color Using specific data he grounds an understanding of boomers financial medical and emotional needs within a historical socioeconomic cultural and political context resulting in tailored recommendations for meeting the challenges of a growing population His research focuses on African American Hispanic Asian Pacific Islander and Native American older adults and addresses issues of financial security employment stability housing and health care which are often complicated by linguistic and cultural differences Rather than treat baby boomers of color as a financial burden on society and its resources Delgado recognizes their strengths and positive contributions to families and communities resulting in an affirming and empowering approach to service
