A Debt of Honor Robert Gallinger, 2001. In 1986, because of Secretary General Gorbachev's glasnost policies, an ever-increasing number of cases of bribery, embezzlement, and other economic crimes surfaced throughout the Soviet Union. Many high-level government officials were already in a gulag because of their alleged involvement in the Uzbek Cotton Affair, where millions of rubles had mysteriously disappeared. Now, together with the money problem, nuclear scientists started to disappear. Investigator Colonel Vladimir Antonovich is tasked to stop the flow of nuclear scientists, whether they are voluntary or otherwise. As part of a special committee, Vladimir prepares a trap to catch the bureaucrats that might be involved. Before it is over, many on the special committee are dead, and more scientists have been kidnapped, including Aleksandra, Vladimir's wife, who is also a nuclear scientist. World leaders are frightened by the prospect of nuclear scientists ending up in Libya, Iraq, Afghanistan, or other countries where terrorists seek mass destruction capabilities. Colonel Antonovich forms a tiger team and rushes for the Sheremetyevo airport, where he suspects his wife and other scientists are being held. The question now is: will he get to them before they are shipped out of country for good?
