At the Back of the North Wind George MacDonald,1869 At the Back of the North Wind by George MacDonald George MacDonald,2020-09-02 I HAVE been asked to tell you about the back of the north wind An old Greek writer mentions a people who lived there and were so comfortable that they could not bear it any longer and drowned themselves My story is not the same as his I do not think Herodotus had got the right account of the place I am going to tell you how it fared with a boy who went there He lived in a low room over a coach house and that was not by any means at the back of the north wind as his mother very well knew For one side of the room was built only of boards and the boards were so old that you might run a penknife through into the north wind And then let them settle between them which was the sharper I know that when you pulled it out again the wind would be after it like a cat after a mouse and you would know soon enough you were not at the back of the north wind Still this room was not very cold except when the north wind blew stronger than usual the room I have to do with now was always cold except in summer when the sun took the matter into his own hands Indeed I am not sure whether I ought to call it a room at all for it was just a loft where they kept hay and straw and oats for the horses And when little Diamond but stop I must tell you that his father who was a coachman had named him after a favourite horse and his mother had had no objection when little Diamond then lay there in bed he could hear the horses under him munching away in the dark or moving sleepily in their dreams For Diamond s father had built him a bed in the loft with boards all round it because they had so little room in their own end over the coach house and Diamond s father put old Diamond in the stall under the bed because he was a quiet horse and did not go to sleep standing but lay down like a reasonable creature But although he was a surprisingly reasonable creature yet when young Diamond woke in the middle of the night and felt the bed shaking in the blasts of the north wind he could not help wondering whether if the wind should blow the house down and he were to fall through into the manger old Diamond mightn t eat him up before he knew him in his night gown And although old Diamond was very quiet all night long yet when he woke he got up like an earthquake and then young Diamond knew what o clock it was or at least what was to be done next which was to go to sleep again as fast as he could children's book by George MacDonald. It was serialized in the children's magazine Good Words for the Young beginning in 1868 and was published in book form in 1871. It is a fantasy centered on a boy named Diamond and his adventures with the North Wind. Diamond travels together with the mysterious Lady North Wind through the nights. The book includes the fairy tale Little Daylight which has been pulled out as an independent work or separately added to other collections of his fairy tales. The book tells the story of a young boy named Diamond. He is a very sweet little boy who makes joy everywhere he goes. He fights despair and gloom and brings peace to his family. One night as he is trying to sleep, Diamond repeatedly plugs up a hole in the loft also his bedroom wall to stop the wind from blowing in. However, he soon finds out that this is stopping the North Wind from seeing through her window. Diamond befriends her and North Wind lets him ride on her back taking him on several adventures. Though the North Wind does good deeds and helps people, she also does seemingly terrible things. On one of her assignments, she must sink a ship. Yet everything she does that seems bad leads to something good. The North Wind seems to be a representation of Pain and Death working according to God's will for something good.
