Back Sense Dr. Ronald D. Siegel, Michael Urdang, Dr. Douglas R. Johnson, 2002-04-09 On occasion nearly everyone experiences short term back pain from sore or strained muscles But for many who come to treat their back gingerly because they fear further injury a cycle of worry and inactivity results this aggravates existing muscle tightness and leads them to think of themselves as having a bad back Even worse is the understandable but usually counterproductive assumption that back pain is caused by abnormalities bulging disks a damaged spine and so on However these abnormalities are frequently found in those who have absolutely no pain whatsoever In reality most backs are strong and resilient built to support our bodies for a lifetime truly bad backs are rare Drawing on their work with patients and studies from major scientific journals and corporations the authors of Back Sense all three are former chronic back pain sufferers themselves developed a revolutionary self treatment approach targeting the true causes of chronic back pain It is based on conclusive evidence proving that stress and inactivity are usually the prime offenders and it allows patients to avoid the restrictions and expense of most other treatments After showing readers how to rule out the possibility that a rare medical condition is the source of their problem Back Sense clearly and convincingly explains the actual factors behind chronic back pain and systematically leads readers toward recapturing a life free of back pain essential purpose of this book is to provide practitioners and students of the human service professions with a practice approach and methodology that has been developed over the past ten years in both research and clinical work with older persons. It is concerned with the kinds of emotional problems that are salient and pervasive in the second half of life that is from about the ages of 50 on into the 60s, 70s and 80s. These problems are often related to inevitable developmental and situational events and losses as well as the decrements and concerns that are prevalent in the latter decades of life: physical decline and illness, loss of loved ones, concerns about one's own mortality, loss of major occupational and family roles, and the issues of meaning in and about one's life, which are raised by these losses and concerns. The approach to these problems will include a range of assessment and treatment methods for counseling and psychotherapy. It will however emphasize two particular kinds of methods for dealing with these problems. The first of these cognitive methods tend to focus on how older persons think about or construe these problems, whereas phenomenological methods focus on how persons experience or feel about them. What is common to both is that they are oriented toward the person's perception of the problem.

Jahr's and Possart's New Manual of the Homœopathic Materia Medica Gottlieb Heinrich Georg Jahr, 1853

The Uses of Obscurity Allon White, 2023-10-09 Originally published in 1981, this book examines why and how textual difficulty became a norm of modernist literature and questions how we can begin to account for the forms of obscurity and difficulty which developed in the late 19th Century and which became so important to modernism. The author argues that the decline of realism entailed the growth of symptomatic or subtextual reading which tended to treat fiction as compromised autobiography. This kind of reading left the author dangerously isolated and exposed in the midst of a newly sophisticated public. Within this general cultural perspective, the book traces the private anxieties that led George Meredith, Joseph Conrad, and Henry James to conceal themselves within their complex and resistant fictions. It discusses opacity in the texts themselves, embarrassment and shame in Meredith, enigmas in Conrad, and the fear of vulgarity and knowledge in Henry James.

The Admissible Contents of Experience Katherine Hawley, Fiona Macpherson, 2011-09-07 Which objects and properties are represented in perceptual experience and how are we able to determine this? The papers in this collection address these questions together with other fundamental questions about the nature of perceptual content. The book draws together papers by leading international philosophers of mind, including Alex Byrne (MIT), Alva Noë (University of California Berkeley), Tim Bayne (St Catherine's College, Oxford), Michael Tye (University of Texas at Austin), Richard Price (All Souls College, Oxford), and Susanna Siegel (Harvard University). Essays address the central questions surrounding the content of perceptual experience: Investigates how are we able to determine the admissible contents of experience. Published in association with the journal Philosophical Quarterly.
