The Incomplete Child Scot Danforth, 2009 With the passage of Public Law 94 142 in 1975 the learning disability construct gained national legitimacy Feeding that political achievement behind the very idea of a learning disability was the development of a science that blended neurology psychology and education This book tracks the historical creation of the science of learning disabilities beginning with the clinical research with brain injured World War I soldiers conducted by German physician Kurt Goldstein It traces the growth of the two primary research traditions the psycholinguistic theory of Samuel Kirk and the movement education of Newell Kephart exploring how specific scientific orientations theories and practices led to the birth of the learning disability in the United States Across the Great Border Fault Kevin T. Dann, 2000 He argues that these were expressions of the early back to nature movement whose underlying biological materialism or Naturalism was integral to American popular culture of the time The Country in the City Richard A. Walker, 2009-11-23 Winner of the Western History Association's 2009 Hal K Rothman Award Finalist in the Western Writers of America Spur Award for the Western Nonfiction Contemporary category 2008 The San Francisco Bay Area is one of the world's most beautiful cities Despite a population of 7 million people it is more greensward than asphalt jungle more open space than hardscape A vast quilt of countryside is tucked into the folds of the metropolis stitched from fields farms and woodlands mines creeks and wetlands In The Country in the City Richard Walker tells the story of how the jigsaw geography of this greenbelt has been set into place The Bay Area's civic landscape has been fought over acre by acre an arduous process requiring popular mobilization political will and hard work Its most cherished environments Mount Tamalpais Napa Valley San Francisco Bay Point Reyes Mount Diablo the Pacific coast have engendered some of the fiercest environmental battles in the country and have made the region a leader in green ideas and organizations This book tells how the Bay Area got its green grove from the stirrings of conservation in the time of John Muir to origins of the recreational parks and coastal preserves in the early twentieth century from the fight to stop bay fill and control suburban growth after the Second World War to securing conservation easements and stopping toxic pollution in our times Here modern environmentalism first became a mass political movement in the 1960s with the sudden blooming of the Sierra Club and Save the Bay and it remains a global center of environmentalism to this day Green values have been a pillar of Bay Area life and politics for more than a century It is an environmentalism grounded in local places and personal concerns close to the heart of the city Yet this vision of what a city should be has always been informed by liberal even utopian ideas of nature planning government and democracy In the end green is one of the primary colors in the flag of the Left Coast where green enthusiasms like open space are built into the fabric of urban life Written in a lively and accessible style The Country in the City will be of interest to general readers and environmental activists At the same time it speaks to fundamental debates in environmental history urban planning and geography A Companion to Los Angeles William Deverell, Greg Hise, 2010-11-23 This Companion

Lichtman, 2000-01-01 Combining statistical analysis with well written narrative history this re evaluation of the 1928 presidential election gives a vivid portrait of the candidates and the campaign Lichtman has based his study primarily on a statistical analysis of data from that election and the presidential elections from 1916 to 1940 for all the 2 058 counties outside the former Confederate South Not relying exclusively on the results of his quantitative analysis however Lichtman has also made an exhaustive survey of previous scholarship and contemporary accounts of the 1928 election He discusses and challenges previous interpretations especially the ethnocultural and pluralist interpretations and the application of critical election theory to the election In disputing this theory which claims that 1928 was a realigning election in which the coalitions were formed that dominated future elections Lichtman determines that 1928 was an aberration with little impact on later political patterns Nature's Ghosts Mark V. Barrow, 2009-10-15 As Mark V Barrow Jr reveals in Nature's Ghosts the threat of species loss has haunted Americans since the early days of the republic Barrow shows how Americans came to understand that it was not only possible for entire species to die out but that humans themselves could be responsible for their extinction These fascinating stories of endangered animals and the dedicated individuals who have studied and struggled to protect them offer an unprecedented view of what we've lost and a stark reminder of the hard work of preservation still ahead Sorting Out the New South City Tom Hanchett, 2017-10-06 One of the largest and fastest growing cities in the South Charlotte North Carolina came of age in the New South decades of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries transforming itself from a rural courthouse village to the trading and financial hub of America's premier textile manufacturing region In this book Thomas Hanchett traces the city's spatial evolution over the course of a century exploring the interplay of national trends and local forces that shaped Charlotte and by extension other New South urban centers Hanchett argues that racial and economic segregation are not age old givens but products of a decades long process Well after the Civil War Charlotte's whites and blacks workers and business owners all lived intermingled in a salt and pepper pattern The rise of large manufacturing enterprises in the 1880s and 1890s brought social and political upheaval however and the city began to sort out into a checkerboard of distinct neighborhoods segregated by both race and class When urban renewal and other federal funds became available in the mid twentieth century local leaders used the money to complete the sorting out process creating a sector pattern in which wealthy whites increasingly lived on one side of town and blacks on the other Albert Shaw of the Review of Reviews Lloyd J. Graybar, 2014-07-15 The life of Albert Shaw 1857-1947 reflected in microcosm the changes that American society was undergoing through a critical period This first full length study focuses on two themes Shaw's career as editor and publisher of the Review of Reviews an influential monthly journal in the early years of the twentieth century and Shaw's career as a public figure Shaw was a member of the Progressive movement from its inception but his concern and interests were wide ranging centering to a large degree on the question of what the industrialization of America meant Lloyd J Graybar shows incisively the ways in which Shaw's professional concerns interacted with his attitude toward public issues The Gateway Arch W. Arthur Mehrhoff, 1992 Muses on the many dimensions of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial in downtown St Louis Five essays some of them published previously consider the relation of the edifice to classical arches to the westward expansion it celebrates to the city it occupies and to the present and future conception of the US No index Paper edition unseen 20 95 Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR Pastoral Cities James L. Machor, 1987 What has the city meant to Americans James L

Machor explores this question in a provocative analysis of American responses to urbanization in the context of the culture's tendency to valorize nature and the rural world. Although much attention has been paid to American rural-urban relations, Machor focuses on a dimension largely overlooked by those seeking to explain American conceptions of the city. While urban historians and literary critics have explicitly or implicitly emphasized the opposition between urban and rural sensibilities in America, an equally important feature of American thought and writing has been the widespread interest in collapsing that division. Convinced that the native landscape has offered special opportunities, Americans since the age of settlement have sought to build a harmonious urban pastoral society combining the best of both worlds. Moreover, this goal has gone largely unchallenged in the culture except for the sophisticated responses in the writings of some of America's most eminent literary artists. Pastoral Cities explains the development of urban pastoralism from its origins in the prophetic vision of the New Jerusalem applied to America in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries through its secularization in the urban planning and reform of the 1800s. Machor critiques the sophisticated treatment of urban pastoralism by writers such as Emerson, Whitman, Hawthorne, Wharton, and James by skillfully combining cultural analysis with a close reading of urban plans, travel narratives, sermons, and popular novels. The product of this multifaceted approach is an analysis that works to reveal both the strengths and weaknesses of the pastoral ideal as cultural mythology.

The Park Builders Thomas R. Cox, 2011-04-21
Among the greatest attractions of the Pacific Northwest are its state parks, campgrounds, and tree-lined highways. From Idaho hot springs to the Oregon coast, millions of people enjoy this priceless legacy every year, but few stop to think about the source of this bounty. The Park Builders profiles the men who provided the parks and the times that shaped them. From its beginnings as part of the progressive crusades to its evolution into an expected function of state government, the state parks movement in the Northwest is a window onto the political and social developments of the twentieth century. The states of Washington, Idaho, and Oregon were generally in the mainstream of the parks movement, but each of their histories is unique. Taken together, they help to define the nature and limitations of regionalism in the Northwest. Especially in the early years, the story of state parks was largely the story of individuals. Drawing extensively from interviews and personal papers, Thomas Cox creates memorable pictures of parks activists in each state. Robert Moran, creator of the battleship Nebraska, spent a decade lobbying the state of Washington to accept his magnificent acreage on Orcas Island. Sam Boardman went from a road crew to the head of Oregon's park system and took up his mission with a zeal that was literally religious. To me, a park is a pulpit, he wrote. The more you keep it, as He made it, the closer you are to Him. In Idaho, Senator Weldon Heyburn, no proponent of state expenditures, set out to create a national park and ended up with a premier state park named for him State parks serve more people at far less expense than do those in the National Park System Since their fates are determined largely at the state level they are an ideal venue for the study of grassroots activism and regional trends This book is the first to collect these themes into a coherent whole It will serve as a model for further regional studies of its kind Children, Nature, and the Urban Environment ,1977
