Bad Boys Public Schools In The Making Of Black Masculinity:

Bad Boys Ann Arnett Ferguson, 2001-08-28 Statistics show that black males are disproportionately getting in trouble and being suspended from the nation's school systems Based on three years of participant observation research at an elementary school Bad Boys offers a richly textured account of daily interactions between teachers and students to understand this serious problem Ann Arnett Ferguson demonstrates how a group of eleven and twelve year old males are identified by school personnel as bound for jail and how the youth construct a sense of self under such adverse circumstances The author focuses on the perspective and voices of pre adolescent African American boys How does it feel to be labeled unsalvageable by your teacher How does one endure school when the educators predict one's future as a jail cell with your name on it Through interviews and participation with these youth in classrooms playgrounds movie theaters and video arcades the author explores what getting into trouble means for the boys themselves She argues that rather than simply internalizing these labels the boys look critically at schooling as they dispute and evaluate the meaning and motivation behind the labels that have been attached to them Supplementing the perspectives of the boys with interviews with teachers principals truant officers and relatives of the students the author constructs a disturbing picture of how educators' beliefs in a natural difference of black children and the criminal inclination of black males shapes decisions that disproportionately single out black males as being at risk for failure and punishment Bad Boys is a powerful challenge to prevailing views on the problem of black males in our schools today It will be of interest to educators parents and youth and to all professionals and students in the fields of African American studies childhood studies gender studies juvenile studies social work and sociology as well as anyone who is concerned about the way our schools are shaping the next generation of African American boys Ann Arnett Ferguson is Assistant Professor of Afro American Studies and Women's Studies Smith College Diversity and Education H. Brown, Jamel K. Donnor, 2013-09-13 The Education of Black Males in a Post Racial World examines the varied structural and discursive contexts of race masculinities and class that shape the educational and social lives of Black males The contributing authors take direct aim at the current discourses that construct Black males as disengaged in schooling because of an autonomous Black male culture and explore how media social sciences school curriculum popular culture and sport can define and constrain the lives of Black males The chapters also provide alternative methodologies theories and analyses for making sense of and addressing the complex needs of Black males in schools and in society By expanding our understanding of how unequal access to productive opportunities and quality resources converge to systemically create disparate experiences and outcomes for African American males this volume powerfully illustrates that race still matters in post racial America This book was originally published as a special issue of Race Ethnicity and Education

Education and Incarceration Erica R. Meiners, Maisha T. Winn, 2014-07-16 The United States of America is in possession of the largest prison population in the world with 2 3 million people currently behind bars This number is predominantly and disproportionately made up of communities of colour and poverty Between 1987 and 2007 the U S prison population tripled the direct result of various tough on crime public policies Organizers and scholars use the term prison industrial complex PIC to name the structure that encompasses the expanding economic and political contexts of the detention and corrections industry in the USA The PIC is a network that sutures capital communities and the State to a permanent punishment economy The term the PIC aims to capture the range of material and ideological forces that shape the growth of detention the political and lobbying power of the corrections officers unions the framing of prisons and jails as a growth industry in the context of deindustrialization the production and sales of technology and security required to maintain and expand the state of incarceration and the naturalization of isolation as a logical response to harm Education and Incarceration highlights the significance of centering agency and autonomy and documents scholars who work to be accountable to justice movements and communities not simply to academic disciplines or to research. Additionally, as emerging scholars committed to challenging the PIC, these authors struggle to build multi-layered analytic and material tools for resistance within and beyond the walls of schools, jails, and prisons. This book provides snapshots of practices in motion: activist scholars working to engage to be accountable to families, communities, and larger justice movements and to build abolition democracies. This book was originally published as a special issue of Race, Ethnicity and Education. Researching Children and Youth Ingrid E. Castro, Melissa Swauger, Brent Harger, 2017-03-17. This volume seeks to directly address the problems and pitfalls that often accompany researching children and youth in today's society. This volume addresses participatory and feminist ethnographic approaches, digital mining, children's agency, and navigating IRBs. Themes of space, location, and identity run throughout this volume. Meeting the Challenge of Adolescent Literacy Mark W. Conley, Joseph R. Freidhoff, Michael B. Sherry, Steven Forbes Tuckey, 2013-11-18. In this concise, thought-provoking book, prominent researchers analyze existing knowledge on adolescent literacy, examine the implications for classroom instruction, and offer specific goals for future research. The volume reviews cutting-edge approaches to understanding the unique features of teaching and learning in secondary schools. Particular attention is given to how teaching literacy across disciplines can improve students' content area learning, and the book includes chapters dedicated to literacy in math and science classrooms. Also addressed are key findings and unresolved questions regarding fluency instruction, struggling adolescent readers, responding to the literacy needs of African American adolescents, and literacy coaching. Exposing the "Culture of Arrogance" in the Academy Gail L. Thompson, Angela C. Louque, 2023-07-12. There generally remains a gulf between the way most Black faculty perceive the racial climate at their institutions and the recognition by non-Black faculty and administrators that there are problems and that these perceptions have merit. This book is intended to promote a productive dialogue. This book weaves the authors' own experiences with the responses of 136 Black faculty to a questionnaire and a smaller sample who were interviewed to identify the factors that determine Black faculty's satisfaction or dissatisfaction with their jobs and institutions. Recurring themes underscore the importance of a supportive work environment that is built on mutual respect, full inclusion in the decision-making process, and an institutional climate that does not tolerate cultural insensitivity or racism. The qualitative and quantitative information and the authors' conclusions can help postsecondary institutions improve Black faculty satisfaction levels and ultimately retention rates. This book will resonate with any Black faculty who have felt frustrated enough to consider leaving a postsecondary institution and with those who are content at their current institutions. For non-Black faculty and for administrators of all races, the book illuminates the sources of job satisfaction and dissatisfaction, explains the reasons their Black colleagues leave or stay, and offers valuable recommendations for change. For anyone at any level interested in the issue of the racial climate at his or her institution, this book offers a constructive framework for discussion and action. The Way Class Works Lois Weis, 2009-09-10. social class and the ways in which class is produced in educational institutions and families while simultaneously interrogating and challenging our understandings of social class as it is linked to race gender and nation

Christian Privilege in U.S. Education Kevin J. Burke, Avner Segall, 2016-12-08 Using critical curriculum theory as its lens this book explores the relationship between religion specifically Christianity and the Judeo Christian ethos underlying it and secular public education in the United States Despite various 20th century court decisions separating religion and education the authors challenge that religion is in fact absent from public education suggesting instead that it is in fact very much embedded in current public educational practices and discourses and in a variety of assumptions and perspectives underlying understandings of teaching learning and teacher preparation The book reframes the discussion about religion and schooling arguing that it remains in the language and metaphors of education in the practices and routines of schooling in conceptions of the child and the teacher and what happens between them in the spaces we call learning the classroom and curriculum as well as in assumptions about the role of schools emanating from such conceptions and in the current movement toward accountability standardization and testing

Christian Privilege in U S Education examines not whether Christianity has a place in public education but rather the very ways in which it is pervasive in a legally secular system of education even when religion is not a topic taught in school
