Dining with Death Kathleen Molloy, 2007 Let's Visit Canada Gr. 3, Acadiensis, 2000 Let's Visit Canada Ruth Solski, Learn about Canada's provinces cities tourist and historical attractions A 12 page reproducible student booklet will teach students about the provinces and territories their names locations flowers and flags Features skills concepts and content in reading writing phonics mapping research and more 65 activities teacher information suggestions and answer key 126 pages Canadian Books in Print Marian Butler, 2000 Canadian Books in Print, 2003 Reconceptualizing Leadership in the Early Years Rory McDowall Clark, Janet Murray, 2012-08-16 This book has the potential to do for nurseries what Michael Fullan's work did for schools to re-affirm the moral heart of leadership Often omitted from accounts of early years professionalism an attitude of care is advocated as the central characteristic of leaders At the same time Clark and Murray challenge the traditional explanation for this attitude amongst practitioners in terms of female nurture presenting it instead in non-gendered terms as a function of ethical character and commitment With their concepts of catalytic agency reflective integrity and relational interdependence the authors provide an intellectual justification for something that many practitioners have long known intuitively that early years leadership calls for a marriage of both mind and heart Dr Geoff Taggart Lecturer in Early Years University of Reading UK This book makes an innovative contribution to the discussion and debate about leadership in early years The new conceptual framework which is introduced for understanding leadership focuses on thinking critically about how leadership is worked out in early childhood practice Underpinned by empirical research from across the early years sector a range of practitioner profiles and voices are used to illustrate examine and discuss the core features of the leadership within process in action Particularly useful for graduate early years leaders and all students of early childhood education and care practice this book includes valuable material that will challenge thinking about the development and professional identity of leaders in early years provision in the twenty first century Gill Goodliff Department of Education The Open University UK This book explores the realities of leadership in the early years and examines the challenges and opportunities for the profession The authors suggest that recent moves to professionalize the workforce offer a unique opportunity to reconceptualize leadership and develop a new paradigm more suited to the specific circumstances of the sector. As well as discussing current perspectives of leadership, the book proposes a new concept for the early years leadership within which recognises that leadership can come from anywhere within an organisation or setting. The book argues that the concept of leadership within is more appropriate for the early years sector as it draws on the professional desire to further the education and well being of young children and their families rather than on traditional hierarchy and position. Key features of the book include:

- Ideas based on research from a wide range of current early years practice.
- Real leadership profiles of practitioners from a diversity of different professional backgrounds and working in a variety of contexts.
- Reflective prompts to assist you in identifying the leadership in your own practice and how this can be developed further.

The ideas explored in Reconceptualizing Leadership in the Early Years have important implications for sustainable leadership development in the sector and are essential reading for all practitioners as well as those studying early childhood and enrolled on EYPS courses.

Quill & Quire, 2000

One Heart, One Way Gregory M. Cook, 2003

Born near Windsor Nova Scotia poet, journalist and novelist Alden Nowlan challenged the apparent disadvantages of poverty and a mere four grades of formal education to publish 25 books including three plays. Haunted by ghosts of his early life, Nowlan nevertheless discovered the ultimate exchange of gifts in the love of his wife and son. They fueled his bravery in plumbing the depths of human loneliness and confessing love's most tender expressions. Nowlan's empathy with society's poor, as well as the earth beneath his feet, finds him cited as often in medical school, pulpit or military mess as in the work of the poets he inspired. He lived long enough in his 50 years to appreciate the sternest discipline. The day the child realizes that all adults are imperfect, he becomes an adolescent; the day he forgives them, he becomes an adult; the day he forgives himself, he becomes wise. His writing earned him two honorary degrees and numerous awards, including a Guggenheim fellowship and the 1968 Governor General's Award For Poetry. That same year he became writer in residence at The University of New Brunswick, a position he filled until his death in 1983.

Gregory M. Cook, the author of five books of poetry, became a close friend of Alden Nowlan during the last 20 years of his extraordinary life. The day they met for the senior poet's first published interview, Cook records magic moments of Nowlan's paternal and romantic love, his phenomenal compassion for the less fortunate, other and his intrinsic intelligence that was exhibited in his life and his works.

Born in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, Gregory Cook graduated from Acadia University. He has worked as a preacher, newspaper reporter, dramatist, freelance journalist and Executive Director of the Writers Federation of

Sensing Changes Joy Parr, 2010-07-01 Our bodies are archives of sensory knowledge that shape how we understand the world But if global environmental changes continue at their present unsettling pace how will we make sense of time and place when the air land and water around us are no longer familiar Joy Parr one of Canada's premier historians tackles this question by exploring situations in the recent past when state driven megaprojects such as chemical plants dams nuclear reactors transportation corridors and new regulatory regimes forced people to cope with radical transformations in their work and home environments In each case the familiar was transformed so thoroughly that residents no longer recognized where they lived or by implication who they were Sensing Changes and its associated website <http://megaprojects.uwo.ca> make a key contribution to environmental history and the emerging field of sensory history This study offers a timely prescient perspective on how humans make sense of the world in the face of rapid environmental change
