Energy for the Year 2000 Richard Wilson, 2012-12-06 The Third International School on Energetics was devoted to the subject of Energy for the Year 2000 By this title we hoped to avoid discussion of such matters as the role of OPEC in raising oil prices In one sense therefore our task was made easier we could merely look into our crystal balls The choice of lecturers was made with the idea that no reasonable source of energy can be overlooked We omitted detailed lectures on oil and natural gas because we took it as a given fact that we would continue to use as much of these fuels as we can get at a reasonable price To give us an overview we started the School by discussing U S energy policy and possible U S energy scenarios As might be expected there was some disagreement about the current energy program in the U S but little disagreement about the facts presented NBS Special Publication ,1968 Energy ,1980 Energy: a Continuing Bibliography with Indexes ,1980 Solar Energy Update ,1980-10 Energy Abstracts for Policy Analysis ,1981 Fossil Energy Update ,1980 Energy Research Abstracts ,1989 Nuclear Fuel Cycle Policy and the Future of Nuclear Power United States. Schwartz,2012-12-06 Alex Cowie As the twentieth century draws to a close one of our greatest problems is the availability of energy One way to study the energy problem is to resolve it into four areas energy demand energy sources transportation of energy from sources to demand centers and the optimal allocation of energy forms to demands Each of these areas is extremely complex by itself When efforts are made to tie them together for example to produce a National Policy the complexities are compounded Another way to study the energy problem because of its political and social consequences is to resolve it into geographical areas Individual provinces of Canada or states of the United States will have their concerns about energy within their geographical boundaries As producer consumer or both each wants to ensure an energy development program which will work to the maximum benefit of its citizens Similarly countries endeavor to protect their citizens and undertake energy policies that will assure either a continuation of the existing quality of life or particularly in the case of Third World countries a marked improvement in quality of life These competing and conflicting goals call for a study which encompasses the whole world Again complexity is piled upon complexity If the problem is not yet sufficiently complex there is an equally complex question of the effect of energy production and use on the ecology Bibliography and Index of Geology ,1983 Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1983 First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70 Energy Conservation Update ,1980 Economic Opportunity Amendments of 1980 United States.
