Environmental Change: The Threat to Human Health Samuel S. Myers,2009-11 Over the past two to three hundred years humanity s ecological footprint has ballooned to such an extent that we are now fundamentally altering the planet We have transformed the Earth s land surface and altered the function of its ecosystems and we are triggering the rapid loss of both terrestrial and marine life We are also profoundly changing our planet s climate It is increasingly apparent that the breadth and depth of the changes we are wreaking on the environment are imperiling not only many of the other species with which we share the ecological stage but the health and wellbeing of our own species as well Global climate change threatens human health in numerous and profound ways Large segments of the population will experience more heat waves altered exposure to infectious disease and more frequent natural disasters Most significantly climatic disruption threatens the adequacy of the core building blocks of health for large populations around the globe sufficient food and nutrition safe water for drinking and sanitation fresh air to breathe and secure homes to live in As climate change dismantles these central elements of healthy societies people with fewer resources will be forced to migrate in large numbers to lands where they may not be welcome A likely result of all of these processes will be increased civic instability and strife Interagency Coordination in Environmental Hazards (pesticides) United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Government Operations. Subcommittee on Reorganization and International Organizations,1964 Multilevel Models Jichuan Wang,Haiyi Xie,James F. Fisher,2011-12-23 Interest in multilevel statistical models for social science and public health studies has been aroused dramatically since the mid 1980s New multilevel modeling techniques are giving researchers tools for analyzing data that have a hierarchical or clustered structure Multilevel models are now applied to a wide range of studies in sociology population studies education studies psychology economics epidemiology and public health This book covers a broad range of topics about multilevel modeling The goal of the authors is to help students and researchers who are interested in analysis of multilevel data to understand the basic concepts theoretical frameworks and application methods of multilevel modeling The book is written in non mathematical terms focusing on the methods and application of various multilevel models using the internationally widely used statistical software the Statistics Analysis System SAS Examples are drawn from analysis of real world research data The authors focus on twolevel models in this book because it is most frequently encountered situation in real research These models can be readily expanded to models with three or more levels when applicable A wide range of linear and non linear multilevel models are introduced and demonstrated Publications Issued by the Public Health Service United States. Public Health Service,1967 Educational Research and Innovation Higher Education to 2030, Volume 1, Demography OECD,2008-11-18 Drawing on trend data and projections this book takes an in depth look at how demographic changes will affect higher education to 2030
