Marsh,1988 Canadian Periodical Index ,1996 British Columbia Backroads Explorer: Thompson-Cariboo Murphy Shewchuk,1985 David Thompson, the Explorer Charles Norris Cochrane,1924 The Cariboo Trail: A Chronicle of the Gold-fields of British Columbia Agnes Christina Laut,1916-01-01 Early in 1849 the sleepy quiet of Victoria Vancouver Island was disturbed by the arrival of straggling groups of ragged nondescript wanderers who were neither trappers nor settlers They carried blanket packs on their backs and leather bags belted securely round the waist close to their pistols They did not wear moccasins after the fashion of trappers but heavy knee high hobnailed boots In place of guns over their shoulders they had picks and hammers and such stout sticks as mountaineers use in climbing They did not forgo with the Indians They shunned the Indians and had little to say to any one They volunteered little information as to whence they had come or whither they were going They sought out Roderick Finlayson chief trader for the Hudson s Bay Company They wanted provisions from the company yes rice flour ham salt pepper sugar and tobacco and at the smithy they demanded shovels picks iron ladles and wire screens It was only when they came to pay that Finlayson felt sure of what he had already guessed They unstrapped those little leather bags round under their cartridge belts and produced in tiny gold nuggets the price of what they had bought Finlayson did not know exactly what to do The fur trader hated the miner The miner wherever he went sounded the knell of fur trading and the trapper did not like to have his game preserve overrun by fellows who scared off all animals from traps set fire going to clear away underbrush and owned responsibility to no authority No doubt these men were argonauts drifted up from the gold diggings of California no doubt they were searching for new mines but who had ever heard of gold in Vancouver Island or in New Caledonia as the mainland was named If there had been gold would not the company have found it Finlayson probably thought the easiest way to get rid of the unwelcome visitors was to let them go on into the dangers of the wilds and then spread the news of the disappointment bound to be theirs He handled their nuggets doubtfully Who knew for a certainty that it was gold anyhow They bade him lay it on the smith's anvil and strike it with a hammer Finlayson smiling sceptically did as he was told The nuggets flattened to a yellow leaf as fine and flexible as silk Finlayson took the nuggets at eleven dollars an ounce and sent the gold down to San Francisco very doubtful what the real value would prove It proved sixteen dollars to the ounce For seven or eight years afterwards rumours kept floating in to the company's forts of finds of gold Many of the company's servants drifted away to California in the wake of the Forty Niners and the company found it hard to keep its trappers from deserting all up and down the Pacific Coast The quest for gold had become a sort of yellow fever madness Men flung certainty to the winds and trekked recklessly to California to Oregon to the hinterland of the country round Colville and Okanagan Yet nothing occurred to cause any excitement in Victoria There was a short lived flurry over the discovery in Queen Charlotte Islands of a nugget valued at six hundred dollars and a vein of gold bearing quartz But the nugget was an isolated freak the quartz could not be worked at a profit and the movement suddenly died out There were however signs of what was to follow The chief trader at the little fur post of Yale reported that when he rinsed sand round in his camp frying pan fine flakes and scales of yellow could be seen at the bottom But gold in such minute particles would not satisfy the men who were hunting nuggets It required treatment by quicksilver Though Maclean the chief factor at Kamloops kept all the specks and flakes brought to his post as samples from 1852 to 1856 he had less than would fill a half pint bottle If a half pint is counted as a half pound and the gold at the company's price of eleven dollars an ounce it will be seen why four years of such discoveries did not set Victoria on fire

Epic Wanderer D'Arcy Jenish, 2004-09-21 Popular historian D Arcy Jenish recreates the adventure and sacrifice of mapmaker David Thompson's fascinating life in the wilderness of North America Epic Wanderer the first full length biography of David Thompson is set in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries against a broad canvas of dramatic rivalries between the United States and British North America between the Hudson's Bay Company and its Montreal based rival the North West Co and between the various First Nations thrown into disarray by the advent of guns horses and alcohol Less celebrated than his contemporaries Lewis and Clark Thompson spent nearly three decades 1784

1812 surveying and mapping over 1 2 million square miles of largely uncharted Indian territory Travelling across the prairies over the Rockies and on to the Pacific Thompson transformed the raw data of his explorations into a map of the Canadian West Measuring ten feet by seven feet and laid out with astonishing accuracy the map became essential to the politicians and diplomats who would decide upon the future of the rich and promising lands of the West Yet its creator worked without personal glory and died in penniless obscurity Drawing extensively on David Thompson s personal journals illustrated with his detailed sketches intricate notebook pages and the map itself Epic Wanderer charts the life of a man who risked everything in the name of scientific advancement and exploration David Thompson James K Smith,2001-09-01 Surveyor fur trader and explorer David Thompson was the first European to descend the Columbia river from its source to its mouth keeping detailed journals of his bearings and the conditions he dealt with David Thompson Joseph Burr Tyrrell,1911
