Individual Differences in Second/Foreign Language Speech Production: Multidisciplinary Approaches and New Sounds Peijian Paul Sun, Boping Yuan, Xun Yan, Jimin Kahng, 2023-09-01 Second foreign language L2 speech production is a complex process requiring individuals combined efforts to utilize various processing components such as conceptualiser formulator and articulator Since the publication of Pim Levelt's book Speaking From Intention to Articulation in 1989 a considerable number of studies have examined L2 speech production in the field of neuroscience with a particular focus on the link between speech perception and speech production Undeniably a neurolinguistic examination of speech production can enrich our understanding of how human brains compute linguistic information at a cognitive level However it is insufficient by only focusing on the neurocognitive dimension of speech production given that individuals speech production can be subject to various individual differences factors either cognitively affectively or socio culturally It is therefore necessary to move beyond the neurocognitive understanding of speech production by taking every possible perspective into consideration Individual difference as an umbrella term covers psychological traits personal characteristics cognitive and emotional components that distinguish learners from each other Given that individual difference factors can reveal disparities in L2 learning and performance among learners such factors have attracted researchers growing interest concerning their influences on L2 speech processing their relationships with L2 speech performance and their contributions to L2 speech development Nevertheless our understanding of L2 speech production is not only insufficient compared to other L2 skills such as writing and reading but also limited to the neurocognitive account of L2 speech production More research therefore is in urgent need to uncover the influence of various individual differences factors on L2 speech production from multidisciplinary perspectives

Playing Our Game Edward S. Steinfeld,2012-02-01 Conventional wisdom holds that China’s burgeoning economic power has reduced the United States to little more than a customer and borrower of Beijing The rise of China many feel necessarily means the decline of the West the United States in particular Not so writes Edward Steinfeld If anything China’s economic emergence is good for America In this fascinating new book Steinfeld asserts that China’s growth is fortifying American commercial supremacy because as the title says China is playing our game By seeking to realize its dream of modernization by integrating itself into the Western economic order China is playing by our rules reinforcing the dominance of our companies and regulatory institutions The impact of the outside world has been largely beneficial to China’s development but also enormously disruptive China has in many ways handed over outsourced the remaking of its domestic economy and domestic institutions to foreign companies and foreign rule making authorities For Chinese companies now participation in global production also means obedience to foreign rules At the same time even as these companies assemble products for export to the West the most valuable components for those products come from the West America’s share of global manufacturing by value has actually increased since 1990 Within China the R rather it is how we are transforming China From outsourcing to energy Steinfeld overturns the conventional wisdom in this incisive and richly researched account
