Rupert's Land Richard C. Davis, 2006-01-01 For nearly two centuries the Company of Adventurers trading into Hudson's Bay exported from Rupert's Land hundreds of thousands of pelts leaving in exchange a wealth of European trade goods Yet opening the vast northwest had more far reaching effects than an exchange of beaver and beads Essays by a dozen scholars explore the cultural tapestry woven by explorers artists settlers traders missionaries and map makers Richard Ruggles traces the mapping of the territory from the mysterious gaps of the 1500s to the grids of the nineteenth century John L Allen recounts how fur trade explorations encouraged Thomas Jefferson to dispatch the Lewis and Clark expedition Irene Spry retells the gusto with which John Palliser a half century later studied the prairies Olive Dickason examines the first contacts of Europeans with Inuit and Amerindians while James G E Smith presents the differing views of the land held by Caribou Eater Chipewyan and traders Robert H Cockburn following Oberholtzer in 1912 and Downes in 1939 finds two more recent views of the Caribou Eater Chipewyan Fred Crabb points out that much of this century's church work has been carried out by native and mixed blood residents Clive Holland outlines Franklin's first land expedition Sylvia Van Kirks clerk in the trade finds his opinion of this rascally and ungrateful country gradually changing while R Douglas Francis compares the ideal image and reality as the West opened to settlement Robert Stacey tells how the theories of the picturesque and the sublime influenced artists portrayals of the West and the Arctic Edward Cavell illustrates how the camera recorded Rupert's Land and changed our perceptions of it as well Forty six maps drawings and paintings and documentary photographs illustrate the tapestry of the text

The Lifeways of Hunter-Gatherers Robert L. Kelly, 2013-04-15 In this book Robert L Kelly challenges the preconceptions that hunter gatherers were Paleolithic relics living in a raw state of nature instead crafting a position that emphasizes their diversity and downplays attempts to model the original foraging lifeway or to use foragers to depict human nature stripped to its core Kelly reviews the anthropological literature for variation among living foragers in terms of diet mobility sharing land tenure technology exchange male female relations division of labor marriage descent and political organization Using the paradigm of human behavioral ecology he analyzes the diversity in these areas and seeks to explain rather than explain away variability and argues for an approach to prehistory that uses archaeological data to test theory rather than one that uses ethnographic analogy to reconstruct the past

Women and Power in Native North America Laura F. Klein, Lillian A. Ackerman, 1995 Power is understood to be manifested in a multiplicity of ways through cosmology economic control and formal hierarchy In the Native societies examined power is continually created and redefined through individual life stages and through the history of the society The important issue is autonomy whether or to what extent individuals are autonomous in living their lives Each author demonstrates that women in a particular cultural area of aboriginal North America had and have more power than many previous observers have claimed Constructing Frames of Reference Lewis R. Binford, 2019-05-07 Many consider Lewis Binford to be the single most influential figure in archaeology in the last half century His contributions to the New Archaeology changed the course of the field as he argued for the development of a scientifically rigorous framework to guide the excavation and interpretation of the archaeological record This book the culmination of Binford s intellectual legacy thus far presents a detailed description of his methodology and its significance for understanding hunter gatherer cultures on a global basis This landmark publication will be an important step in understanding the great process of cultural evolution and will change the way archaeology proceeds as a scientific enterprise This work provides a major synthesis of an enormous body of cultural and environmental information and offers many original insights into the past Binford helped pioneer what is now called ethnoarchaeology the study of living societies to help explain cultural patterns in the archaeological record and this book is grounded on a detailed analysis of ethnographic data from about 340 historically known hunter gatherer populations The methodological framework based on this data will reshape the paradigms through which we understand human culture for years to come Circumpolar

Temagami and how the land should be used has caused a debate of unparalleled intensity For the native people it is their lands under attack For environmentalists from all parts of Ontario it is a case of ecological preservation of a unique but fast disappearing wilderness For others dependent upon the resource sector it is a matter of economic survival both individually and for their communities In an attempt to clarify the issues surrounding Temagami Laurentian University s Institute of Northern Ontario Development and Research invited participants in the Temagami debate to a conference in October 1989

What follows in this volume are eleven of the revised papers originally presented there. A balanced perspective on the issues at hand is coupled with the views of the various interest groups. Topics covered include aboriginal rights in Temagami, the development of a wilderness park system in Ontario, the management of multiple resources, the importance of tourism in Temagami, and an environmentalist's perspective. Hunters at the Margin John Sandlos, 2011-11-01. Hunters at the Margin examines the conflict in the Northwest Territories between Native hunters and conservationists over three big game species: the wood bison, the muskox, and the caribou. John Sandlos argues that the introduction of game regulations, national parks, and game sanctuaries was central to the assertion of state authority over the traditional hunting cultures of the Dene and Inuit. His archival research undermines the assumption that conservationists were motivated solely by enlightened preservationism, revealing instead that commercial interests were integral to wildlife management in Canada. Recent Progress of Natural Sciences in Japan, 1983. People with Animals Lee Broderick, 2016-03-01. People with Animals emphasizes the interdependence of people and animals in society, and contributors examine the variety of forms and time depth that these relations can take. The types of relationship studied include the importance of manure to farming societies, dogs as livestock guardians, seasonality in pastoralist societies, butchery symbolism, and food. Examples are drawn from the Pleistocene to the present day and from the Altai Mountains, Ethiopia, Iraq, Italy, Mongolia, and North America. The 11 papers work from the basis that animals are an integral part of society and that past society is the object of most archaeological inquiry. Discussion papers explore this topic and use the case studies presented in other contributions to suggest the importance of ethnozoarchaeology not just to archaeology but also to anthrozoology. A further contribution to archaeological theory is made by an argument for the validity of ethnozoarchaeology-derived models to Neanderthals. The book makes a compelling case for the importance of human-animal relations in the archaeological record and demonstrates why the information contained in this record is of significance to specialists in other disciplines. A study of the kinship terms used by the Mission Chipewyan and the social ramifications that result from their basis on relative age and genealogical position, the confusion surrounding kindred and hunting unit functions, and the implications of marriage. Published in English. Journal of Anthropological Research, 1973. Foraging in the Past Lemke, 2019-02-15. The label hunter-gatherer covers an extremely diverse range of societies and behaviors; yet most of what is known is provided by ethnographic and historical data that cannot be used to interpret prehistory. Foraging in the Past takes an explicitly archaeological approach to the potential of the archaeological record to document the variability and time depth of hunter-gatherers. Well-established and young scholars present new prehistoric data and describe new methods and theories to investigate ancient forager lifeways and document hunter-gatherer variability across the globe. The authors use relationships established by cross-cultural data as a background for examining the empirical patterns of prehistory Covering underwater sites in North America the peaks of the Andes Asian rainforests and beyond chapters are data rich methodologically sound and theoretically nuanced effectively exploring the latest evidence for behavioral diversity in the fundamental process of hunting and gathering Foraging in the Past establishes how hunter gatherers can be considered archaeologically extending beyond the reach of ethnographers and historians to argue that only through archaeological research can the full range of hunter gatherer variability be documented Presenting a comprehensive and integrated approach to forager diversity in the past the volume will be of significance to both students and scholars working with or teaching about hunter gatherers Contributors Nicholas J Conard Raven Garvey Keiko Kitagawa John Krigbaum Petra Kr nneck Steven Kuhn Julia Lee Thorp Peter Mitchell Katherine Moore Susanne C M nzel Kurt Rademaker Patrick Roberts Britt Starkovich Brian A Stewart Mary Stiner Japanese Civilization in the Modern World Tadao Umesao,Harumi Befu,Shūzō Ishimori,1995 Japanese Civilization in the Modern World: Amusement Tadao Umesao,Harumi Befu,Josef Kreiner,1984 Essays in Northeast African Studies Shun Sato,Eisei Kurimoto,1996
