Chocolate Bar:

What Is A Chocolate Bar, The Dangers Of Consuming Chocolate Bars, The Health Effects Of Consuming Chocolate Bars, And The Health Optimization Measures To Implement For Enhancing Your Health Dr. Harrison Sachs, 2021-05-10 This essay sheds light on is a chocolate bar reveals the dangers of consuming chocolate bars demystifies the health effects of consuming chocolate bars and delineates the health optimization measures to implement for enhancing your health Succinctly stated a chocolate bar is deemed to be a type of man made confection in the shape of a bar that is comprised of chocolate In addition to being comprised of chocolate a chocolate bar is often comprised of a host of noxious ingredients As of 7 7 2025 most chocolate bars are not comprised of 100% cocoa content Furthermore as of 7 7 2025 chocolate bars that are comprised of 100% cocoa content are often significantly higher priced than most chocolate bars In stark contrast to vegetables chocolate bars are not cultivated in vegetable gardens on arable land Furthermore in stark contrast to fruits the constituents of milk chocolate bars are not all derived from flowering plants Chocolate bars are manufactured in a factory setting Industrial robots are capable of manufacturing chocolate bars in a factory setting The taste can vary from chocolate bar to chocolate bar Milk chocolate bars are often designed to have a sweet taste whereas dark chocolate bars are often designed to have a bittersweet taste Milk chocolate bars are able to have a sweet taste primarily because sugar is typically a pervasively prevalent ingredient in chocolate bars Even though dark chocolate bars contain a lower percentage of sugar content than milk chocolate bars they are still nonetheless laced with a high quantity of added sugar The amount of sugar content in a chocolate bar can vary from chocolate bar to chocolate bar An average sized bar of milk chocolate of around 45 grams contains about 25 grams of sugar This equates to roughly 55 grams of sugar per 100 grams Furthermore an average sized bar of dark chocolate of around 45 grams specifically those with 70 85% cocoa content contains about 10 12 grams of sugar This equates to roughly 22 26 grams of sugar per 100 grams Chocolate bars that contain 50% 90% cocoa content often have less sugar content than chocolate bars that contain less than 50% cocoa content The most pervasively prevalent type of sugar that is embedded in a chocolate bar is often sucrose Sucrose is a disaccharide that is also known as table sugar A chocolate bar can be comprised of other types of sugars such as fructose and glucose The ingredients that are embedded in a chocolate bar can vary from chocolate bar to chocolate bar Chocolate bars are comprised of cocoa ingredients such as cocoa solids and cocoa butter In addition to being comprised of cocoa ingredients chocolate bars are often comprised of added sugar and other ingredients such as soy lecithin and flavor additives In stark contrast to dark chocolate bars milk chocolate bars often have milk solids embedded in them Even though the bevy of ingredients can vary from chocolate bar to chocolate bar most chocolate bars are laced with ample unhealthy ingredients Chocolate bars often have a long shelf life as man made food products The shelf life of a chocolate bar can vary from chocolate bar to chocolate bar The higher the cocoa percentage in a dark chocolate bar the longer dark chocolate tends to last Dark chocolate with its higher cocoa content and lower milk content generally has a significantly longer shelf life than milk chocolate. The milk fat content in milk chocolate makes it more vulnerable to going rancid particularly when exposed to heat, light, or humidity. When stored properly at room temperature in a cool, dry place, it is possible for a dark chocolate bar to last for six to sixteen months and for a milk chocolate bar to last four to ten months. The ingredients in chocolate bars are not limited to the aforementioned ingredients. For instance, milk chocolate bars are often comprised of animal proteins, animal fats, and animal carbohydrates. Furthermore, chocolate bars can also contain heavy metals such as lead and cadmium. Twenty-three of 28 dark chocolate bars tested by Consumer Reports had high levels of cadmium or lead; a report by the consumer testing publication found five had high levels of both heavy metals. Dark chocolate bars often contain a higher quantity of heavy metals than milk chocolate bars. A chocolate bar is deemed to be an insalubrious man-made food product that is comprised of deleterious ingredients.

A Chocolate Bar Sarah Ridley, 2005-12-15 Describes how cocoa beans are harvested and processed to form chocolate used to make candy bars and other treats.
