Chornobil I Sotsium:

Environmental Justice and Sustainability in the Former Soviet Union Julian Agyeman, Yelena Ogneva-Himmelberger, 2009 An examination of the awareness of environmental and social justice issues in the former Soviet republics from the Western style democracies of the Baltic region to the totalitarian regimes of Central Asia and the resulting activism in those states The legacy of environmental catastrophe in the states of the former Soviet Union includes desertification pollution and the toxic aftermath of industrial accidents the most notorious of which was the Chernobyl disaster of 1986 This book examines the development of environmental activism in Russia and the former Soviet republics in response to these problems and its effect on policy and planning It also shows that because of increasing economic ethnic and social inequality in the former Soviet states debates over environmental justice are beginning to come to the fore The book explores the varying environmental social political and economic circumstances of these countries which range from the Western style democracies of the Baltic states to the totalitarian regimes of Central Asia and how they affect the ecological environmental and public health Among the topics covered are environmentalism in Russia including the progressive nature of its laws on environmental protection which are undermined by overburdened and underpaid law enforcement the effect of oil wealth on Azerbaijan and Kazakhstan the role of nationalism in Latvian environmentalism the struggle of Russia's indigenous peoples for environmental justice public participation in Estonia's environmental movement and lack of access to natural capital in Tajikistan Environmental Justice and Sustainability in the Former Soviet Union makes clear that although fragile transition economies varying degrees of democratization and a focus on national security can stymie progress toward just sustainability the diverse states of the former Soviet Union are making some progress toward green and environmental justice issues separately

Chornobyl' i sotsium, 2004 Sociology in Central and Eastern Europe Mike Keen, Janusz Mucha, 2003-05-30 In this unique collection more than 20 sociologists assembled from across Central and Eastern Europe chronicle the impact political transformation has had upon sociology during the last decade of the 20th century Contributors investigate the general patterns this process has taken across the region as well as the differences from one country to the next Also examined is the extent to which sociology has contributed to or participated in the transformation i.e. helped the societies of Central and Eastern Europe identify understand and respond to the challenges and opportunities offered by it Of particular interest is the extensive bibliography of sociological research in Central and Eastern Europe carried out during this period of transition

Don't Tell the Boss! Dmitry Chernov, Didier Sornette, Giovanni Sansavini, Ali Ayoub, 2023-01-20 After a major disaster when investigators are piecing together the story of what happened a striking fact often emerges before disaster struck some people in the organization involved were aware of dangerous conditions that had the potential to escalate to a critical level But for a variety of reasons this crucial information did not reach decision makers

So the organization moved ever closer to catastrophe effectively unaware of the possible threat despite the fact that some of its employees could see it coming What is the problem with communication about risk in an organization and why does this problem exist What stops people in organizations or project teams from freely reporting and discussing critical risks This book seeks to answer these questions starting from a deep analysis of 20 disasters where the concealment of risks played a major part These case studies are drawn from around the world and span a range of industries civil nuclear power coal oil and gas production hydropower energy metals and mining space exploration transport finance retail manufacturing and even the response of governments to wars famines and epidemics Together case studies give an insight into why people hesitate to report risks and even when they do why their superiors often prefer to ignore the news The book reviews existing research on the challenges of voice and silence in organizations This helps to explain more generally why people dread passing on bad news to others and why in the workplace they prefer to keep quiet about unpleasant facts or potential risks when they are talking to superiors and colleagues The discussion section of the book includes important examples of concealment within the Chinese state hierarchy as well as by leading epidemiologists and governments in the West during the novel coronavirus outbreak in Wuhan in 2019 2020 The full picture of the very early stage of the COVID 19 pandemic remains unclear and further research is obviously needed to better understand what motivated some municipal provincial and national officials in China as well as Western counterparts to obfuscate facts in their internal communications about many issues associated with the outbreak

Belarus Hans-Georg Heinrich, Ludmilla Lobova, 2009 This volume is a synopsis of various perspectives as well as a trans boundary and interdisciplinary analysis of the Belarusian model It is the result of a dialogue among authors who for various reasons take a supportive or critical approach towards the present regime Their views are supplemented by contributions written by authors from neighboring countries The findings support the thesis that Belarusian society economy and the political system have begun to adapt to the new challenges the country faces This study marks an important step forward in the analysis of the intractable Belarusian model and helps to identify its unique and ephemeral features

Impact of Pollution on Animal Products Bernard Faye, Yuriy Sinyavskiy, 2008-04-22 The international advanced research workshop funded by NATO and entitled impact of pollutions on animal and animal products was organized at Almaty Kazakhstan on 27 30 September 2007 Thirty one scientists from 12 countries Kazakhstan Kirgizstan Azerbaijan Ukraine Russia France Great Britain Italy Belgium Romania and Morocco presented conferences at this meeting to share their experience and results The programme included three main aspects i generality on the pollution situation in Central Asia and former Soviet Union republics ii the pollution area and pollution origin in Central Asia and Western countries in relation with animal health and iii the relationships between soil contamination plant contamination and animal products status The present workshop contributed highly to the exchange between scientists giving the opportunity for researchers from Central Asia to access to new scientific approaches and methodologies and for European scientists to assess the extent of the environmental problems in this part of the world No doubt that these exchanges were the main success of the workshop marked by very stimulating discussions Such meeting was also the opportunity to put on the first stone of a scientific network focused on the subject of the workshop The importance of pollution in Central Asia in general and in Kazakhstan in particular is a well known feature and several references are available on the source and localization of pollution problems in those countries The references are also abundant on the impact of the environmental failures on human health

Energy Security Logics in Europe Izabela Surwillo, 2019-05-07 This book analyzes energy security dynamics in Europe through the prism of security logics Drawing on the literature on securitization security logics and security contexts it scrutinizes energy security debates and policy developments in Germany Poland and Ukraine focusing on the pipeline politics nuclear energy and renewables sector The contextualized analysis accounts for the wider historical socio economic and cultural background from which energy policies emerge and gives a voice to the different stakeholders from policymakers to the local NGO sector The book sheds light on the root causes of different energy policy decisions and illustrates that European energy security is currently driven by four security logics war subsistence risk and emancipation The logic of emancipation is a newly emergent phenomenon embraced by many bottom up citizens initiatives and manifested in their drive to self reliance the rhetoric of liberation and local practices of energy production The conceptualization and analysis of the emancipatory logic vis vis other energy security logics help to explain European energy context most effectively with its background conditions emerging trends and often controversial national policy approaches This book will be of much interest to students of critical security studies energy policy and European politics in general

Environmentalism and the New Logic of Business R. Edward Freeman, Jessica Pierce, Richard Dodd, 2000 To help executives meet the challenge of being profitable doing the right thing and helping save the Earth the authors outline a program for change that firms can use to maximize their profits and minimize their negative impact on the environment They show how executives can add environmental awareness to the strategic mix and still compete successfully
