

Reading Strategy Goals

Possible goal:	When to choose this goal:
Stop to visualize (picture) what is happening in the story	My book doesn't have many pictures and I want to imagine what is happening in my mind.
Write down a few questions before I start reading and then answer my questions at the end of my reading time	I have a hard time remembering what happens in my story. If I ask questions, it will help me stay focused on finding the answers as I read.
Stop at the end of a chapter, or section, in my story to summarize what is going on.	I get to the end of my chapter or section and can't remember the details of the story.
Go back and reread when I don't understand what is going on in the story	When I get to the end of my reading time, I can't remember what I read.
Learn new and interesting words from the books I read	I keep coming across new and interesting words and I don't know what they mean.
Take a picture walk, or preview the chapter titles before reading	I want to get my mind thinking and predicting about what I will read.
Use word-attack strategies like reread, chunking, using meaning clues, reading on, or connecting to words I already know.	My reading pace is slow because I have to stop to figure out a word often. This makes my reading choppy.

Text Relevance and Learning from Text Gregory Schraw, Matthew T. McCrudden, Joseph P. Magliano, 2011-08-01

Why do people from similar backgrounds who read the same text construct different meanings Is there a question behind every reading goal such that reading is an interactive process of asking and answering of questions Do people who believe that knowledge is dynamic construct meaning differently than those who believe that knowledge is certain This volume addresses questions such as these and presents cutting edge research and theory that explores how readers determine text relevance i e the different values they assign to information as they read how relevance affects understanding and the implications of these studies for theories of text comprehension This volume documents in a compelling manner the ongoing international effort to understand how text relevance affects reading and comprehension Contributing authors represent major academic institutions on three continents and nine countries demonstrating the multinational interest in text relevance Why is there so much interest in text relevance Learners are inundated with unprecedented amounts of information and increased research regarding how readers process non traditional texts e g documents on the web and multiple documents for example underscores the importance of understanding how readers determine the relevance of text information for personal academic or professional goals which can enable educators to design learning situations that help learners get the most out of reading

Reading as a Philosophical Practice Robert Piercey, 2020-12-15 Reading as a Philosophical Practice asks why reading everyday reading for pleasure matters so profoundly to so many people Its answer is that reading is an implicitly philosophical activity To passionate readers it is a way of working through and taking a stand on certain fundamental questions about who and what we are how we should live and how we relate to other things The book examines the lessons that the activity of reading seems to teach about selfhood morality and ontology and it tries to clarify the sometimes paradoxical claims that serious readers have made about it To do so it proposes an original theoretical framework based on Virginia Woolf's notion of the common reader and Alasdair MacIntyre's conception of practice It also asks whether reading can continue to play this role as paper is replaced by electronic screens
