Approaches to Advanced Information Technology Auke Jan Ijspeert, Masayuki Murata, Naoki Wakamiya, 2004-10-22 The evolution of the Internet has led us to the new era of the information infrastructure As the information systems operating on the Internet are getting larger and more complicated it is clear that the traditional approaches based on centralized mechanisms are no longer meaningful One typical example can be found in the recent growing interest in a P2P peer to peer computing paradigm It is quite different from the Web based client server systems which adopt essentially centralized management mechanisms The P2P computing environment has the potential to overcome bottlenecks in Web computing paradigm but it introduces another difficulty a scalability problem in terms of information found if we use a brute force flooding mechanism As such conventional information systems have been designed in a centralized fashion As the Internet is deployed on a world scale however the information systems have been growing and it becomes more and more difficult to ensure fault free operation This has long been a fundamental research topic in the field A complex information system is becoming more than we can manage For these reasons there has recently been a significant increase in interest in biologically inspired approaches to designing future information systems that can be managed efficiently and correctly

Scale-Space Theory in Computer Vision Tony Lindeberg,2013-03-09 The problem of scale pervades both the natural sciences and the visual arts The earliest scientific discussions concentrate on visual perception much like today and occur in Euclid's c 300 B C Optics and Lucretius c 100 55 B C On the Nature of the Universe A very clear account in the spirit of modern scale space theory is presented by Boscovitz in 1758 with wide ranging applications to mathematics physics and geography Early applications occur in the cartographic problem of generalization the central idea being that a map in order to be useful has to be a generalized coarse grained representation of the actual terrain Miller and Voskuil 1964 Broadening the scope asks for progressive summarizing Very much the same problem occurs in the realistic artistic rendering of scenes Artistic generalization has been analyzed in surprising detail by John Ruskin in his Modern Painters who even describes some of the more intricate generic scale space singularities in detail Where the ancients considered only the merging of blobs under blurring Ruskin discusses the case where a blob splits off another one when the resolution is decreased a case that has given rise to confusion even in the modern literature
