the data and information for this accounting of televised presidential debates comes from the author's first hand experience as one who was involved with these debates as a participant observer on site at nearly all of the debates discussed. Throughout these discussions emphasis is placed on the implications for public policy. To suggest policy that will be accepted and adopted by politicians and the public is at best difficult. Proposals for changes in public policy based on experience even when scientific data support those changes must be subjected to an assessment of the values and predispositions of the proponent. These values and predispositions however may not necessarily inhibit the proponent's objectivity. As such this review of television use in the presidential election process provides the context for examining televised debates.
