Blood Beef, Dead Shrimp & Gold Gary P. Flood,2022-06-20 This book was fun to write growing up in Seabrook Texas in my grandmother s house by the bay allowed me to have freedoms some will never know I moved into my nanas house shortly after the passing of my grandfather Philip Allen portrayed as Bill Davis in the book Him and Goldie were true to character along with the beautiful Lilian Allen my Nana The meals cooked in that kitchen are reminded to me daily when I look at the sign from her kitchen that my mother gave me after her passing It sets high and proud in my kitchen Lillian s Home Cooking I was my grandmothers only grandson and everyone knew it especially my sisters That may be why she didn t mind playing such a strong roll in raising me and forgave easy even when I stole her car at the age of 14 in pursuit of California stardom My mother and sister still reside in that house today and it s never been a warmer place to visit with mom continuing the tradition of one great loving meal after another Waking in the summer and running barefoot in nothing but a torn up pair of jeans all day Up and down the bay front fishing and burning my bare feet on the hot planks of any pier I could find Running through the woods that fronted the salty water was my home In the summer As I got older I would occasionally deck hand on a shrimp boat out of port Bolivar named the Proud Mary The story always went that she snagged a real treasure one time and authorities took it all away from the captain that snagged it True Not true I ll leave that up to you I like to think it is The fish houses that cover the point by the Seabrook Kemah bridge are still ran today with the hard working Vietnamese family s that carved their strong hold in the 70s Growing up and raising a family around the salty shores between Seabrook Texas and Galveston island has given me the blessing of knowing some of the most interesting characters Some so far out they could only be true you can t make stuff like that up The numbers of friends and family that still reside in these areas will always be what I call home

Courage Tastes of Blood Florencia E. Mallon,2005-10-28 Until now very little about the recent history of the Mapuche Chile s largest indigenous group has been available to English language readers Courage Tastes of Blood helps to rectify this situation It tells the story of one Mapuche community Nicol s Ail o located in the south of the country across the entire twentieth century from its founding in the resettlement process that followed the military defeat of the Mapuche by the Chilean state at the end of the nineteenth century Florencia E Mallon places oral histories gathered from community members over an extended period of time in the 1990s in dialogue with one another and with her research in national and regional archives Taking seriously the often quite divergent subjectivities and political visions of the community's members Mallon presents an innovative historical narrative one that reflects a mutual collaboration between herself and the residents of Nicol's Ail'o Mallon recounts the land usurpation Nicol's Ail'o endured in the first decades of the twentieth century and the community's ongoing struggle for restitution Facing extreme poverty and inspired by the agrarian mobilizations of the 1960s some community members participated in the agrarian reform under the government of socialist president Salvador Allende With the military coup of 1973 they suffered repression and desperate impoverishment Out of this turbulent period the Mapuche revitalization movement was born What began as an effort to protest the privatization of community lands under the military dictatorship evolved into a broad movement for cultural and political recognition that continues to the present day By providing the historical and local context for the emergence of the Mapuche revitalization movement Courage Tastes of Blood offers a distinctive perspective on the evolution of Chilean democracy and its rupture with the military coup of 1973

Letters in Blood Gerald Arthur Winter, 2007-10-02 Tom Larkin paid fifty grand for his brilliant red casket months before they planned a sailor's funeral for him that night His coffin cruised at 120 mph with its dash lit like a jet's cockpit where the most important reading to Larkin glowed on his Porsche's digital clock 4:00 AM. Perhaps it was his darkest moment before dawn but he had other plans. He drove recklessly hydroplaning northbound on Manhattan's flooded FDR Drive through sheets of pouring rain. The drive home took an hour but with minimal visibility in a torrential downpour the flooded Harlem River Drive leading to the George Washington Bridge concealed potholes rattling the fine suspension of his German-made wet dream. Larkin's greater problem DWI was a given they had counted on. Still they drugged his last sour mash at Rao's just to up the prelude's tempo to an evening dirge. With the bad weather his inebriation and hallucinations from a subtle drug taking hold of his senses the distance between Larkin and home lengthened as time became his enemy. Vera, his wife, told him she'd kill him the next time he stumbled in after daybreak. It was no idle threat. He knew she could kill in a crime of passion especially him. Death lurked at the start and finish of his race homeward but with two strikes against him only he could fathom the third. His bent to self-destruction. If all went as planned Harbor Police would find Tom Larkin dead behind the wheel after hitting the muddy bottom of the East River or any other river. They just wanted him gone stateside or overseas no matter what. Larkin still felt sharp an hour after downing his third double Jack Daniels. In his mind past, present and future were clear. Remembering his hat size, Social Security number and the measurements of a dozen bimbos was no problem. He could read his driver's license number from three paces backward upside down with either eye or both without glasses. He'd been sharp for two hours before he started driving but an hour after his last belt the one first kicked in with the drugs and compounded his usual buzz. Seeing Vera as more dangerous than the road he sped recklessly despite the hazardous conditions. He had no idea anyone wanted to kill him for anything other than his flagrant infidelities. To his right the black depths of the East River was a fatal attraction. He could be a loser on two counts but there was a third alternative the loser's hat trick call strike three without a swat to stay alive. His own worst enemy he knew they might find him dead before dawn on all three counts. Bastards he grumbled cursing his so-called buddies who let him get behind the wheel after he had been pumping drinks for hours. Their names escaped him. So much for clarity. Sharp as a rose thorn he wondered. My ass. Where were those faceless nonentities. They were friends enough to buy his fourth drink in a dingy saloon yet they had turned their backs when he squinted to read the address on his parking stub. Had they callously watched him stumbling to his Porsche trying to get the himself home. So much for twenty-twenty fucking vision he thought. Vera will kill me if I'm not out of here. What time you got Pal. I can't read my damn watch. His mind and car sped out of control at a mile a minute. The East River beckoned. Who could ever see clearly in a dim twilight between happy hour and an untimely death. He shrugged and imagined seeing his own hands clutching the steering wheel but saw no flesh only bone. In the rearview mirror he caught the malicious grins of three Mexican capungos bandits who'd kill as soon as spit.

Trial by Blood William Bernhardt, 2020-05-26. A billion dollar inheritance. A relative's suspicious reappearance. Can Dan dig up the secrets of the past before he's buried six feet under.
