Bonnard Rothko Color And Light February 19march 22 1997:

Pierre Bonnard Pierre Bonnard, Nicole R. Myers, Allison Stielau, Metropolitan Museum of Art (New York, N.Y.), 2009 The vibrant late paintings of Pierre Bonnard 1867 1947 are considered by many to be among his finest achievements Working in a small converted bedroom of his villa in the south of France Bonnard suffused his late canvases with radiant Mediterranean light and dazzling color Although his subjects were close at hand usually everyday scenes taken from his immediate surroundings such as the dining room table being set for breakfast or a jug of flowers perched on the mantelpiece Bonnard rarely painted from life Instead he preferred to make pencil sketches in small diaries and then rely on these along with his memory once in the studio This volume which accompanies the first exhibition to focus on the interior and related still life imagery from the last decades of Bonnard's long career presents more than seventy five paintings drawings and works on paper many of them rarely seen in public and in some cases little known Although Bonnard's legacy may be removed from the succession of trends that today we consider the foundation of modernism his contribution to French art in the early decades of the twentieth century is far more profound than history has generally acknowledged In their insightful essays and catalogue entries the authors bring fresh critical perspectives to the ongoing reappraisal of Bonnard's reputation and to his place within the narrative of twentieth century art Jacket Bonnard, Rothko Bernice Rose, PaceWildenstein (Firm), 1997

Art Now Gallery Guide, 1997-03 Mark Rothko David Anfam, 1998-09-10 This is the first volume of the catalogue raisonne of the work of Mark Rothko the abstract artist It documents Rothko's entire output of paintings on canvas and panel reproducing all the works in colour An introductory text investigates the essential features of Rothko's art The Cumulative Book Index, 1997 A world list of books in the English language Sitzungsberichte, 2003 Drawing as Expression Sandy Brooke, 2002 Human communication is grounded in fundamentally cooperative even shared intentions In this original and provocative account of the evolutionary origins of human communication Michael Tomasello connects the fundamentally cooperative structure of human communication initially discovered by Paul Grice to the especially cooperative structure of human as opposed to other primate social interaction Tomasello argues that human cooperative communication rests on a psychological infrastructure of shared intentionality joint attention common ground evolved originally for collaboration and culture more generally The basic motives of the infrastructure are helping and sharing humans communicate to request help inform others of things helpfully and share attitudes as a way of bonding within the cultural group These cooperative motives each created different functional pressures for conventionalizing grammatical constructions Requesting help in the immediate you and me and here and now for example required very little grammar but informing and sharing required increasingly complex grammatical devices Drawing on empirical research into gestural and vocal communication by great apes and human infants much of it conducted by his own research team Tomasello argues further that humans cooperative communication emerged first in the natural gestures of pointing and pantomiming

Conventional communication first gestural and then vocal evolved only after humans already possessed these natural gestures and their shared intentionality infrastructure along with skills of cultural learning for creating and passing along jointly understood communicative conventions. Challenging the Chomskian view that linguistic knowledge is innate, Tomasello proposes instead that the most fundamental aspects of uniquely human communication are biological adaptations for cooperative social interaction in general and that the purely linguistic dimensions of human communication are cultural conventions and constructions created by and passed along within particular cultural groups. Bonnard, Rothko Pierre
