on Mandog Hill Capt Clifford Sarauw covers the US 10th Army's fateful landing on Okinawa. These aforementioned exploits are among the notable events contained in Nine from Aberdeen, the first academic history solely devoted to the US Army's Ordnance Bomb Disposal Branch from World War II. Shortly after Pearl Harbor, nine US Army officers and sergeants were sent from Aberdeen Proving Ground to war-torn England in order to learn the invaluable technical skills pioneered by the British Royal Engineers. Led by the colorful Thomas J. Kane, these nine men inaugurated the new Ordnance Bomb Disposal School. Conceived initially for homeland defense, Col. Kane's branch eventually fielded over two hundred Army and Air Force bomb squads for overseas service. These courageous officers and men were forerunners of today's Explosive Ordnance Disposal (EOD) specialists responsible for supporting the US military during combat operations and for preserving the lives of noncombatants at all other times. Using documents and photographs, many from personal collections as well as oral interviews, this work presents a cross section of US Army and Air Force operations spanning three major theaters: Mediterranean, European, and the Pacific. Special emphasis is given to the European Theater where Col. Kane served as Gen. Eisenhower's chief ETO bomb disposal officer. Nine from Aberdeen also contains charts detailing campaign participations, ordnance statistics, and other significant data. Command Sergeant Major James H. Clifford, Retired, military consultant for the award-winning film The Hurt Locker, provides an afterword on the continuity of modern EOD. Profile, 1980 I'm Not a Mind Reader M. Babits, 2015-05-12. Chocolates are fine and flowers rarely disappoint, but for relationships on the rocks, nothing says "I love you" like the promise of renewal. In I'm Not a Mind Reader, Babits reveals that too often even the smartest people have difficulty communicating, and we've learned over the years that love isn't enough to repair the normal wear and tear that occurs in relationships. So what can couples do when even love itself fails? Babits lays out a totally unique blueprint for renewal in The I'm Not a Mind Reader, explaining that every message from one partner to another can be considered in terms of three separate dimensions: The surface level (this is the literal meaning of what partners say to one another), The emotional subtext of the message (its emotional undertone), and The third dimension (evaluating the first two and comparing them with the goal of creating emotional safety within the dialogue). Armed with this formula, whatever needs to be better understood, resolved, expanded, or modified in the relationship can be addressed, and communication brings coherence and connection. The person who practices three-dimensional communication lives in full and vibrant color, compared with seeing everything in black and white. This new method is vivid and textured; it promotes the capacity to negotiate differences, to clarify misunderstandings, to heal confusions, and to reinvigorate passion and trust. The Cuckoo's Nest Jagdish Joshi, 2013-08-13.
