more often in their books as it actually seems Furthermore I will figure out how many new words the Irish created over the decent years and why an English person won't understand these words without looking them up in a hiberno dictionary Finding the answer to some common questions about Irish behavior and habits will be another task I have to deal with To sum up you could say that my paper will be about a lot of Irish oddities especially in their written tasks And furthermore finding the cause for those peculiarities At the end of my paper I want to see if Banville's quote is just his opinion or if the whole Irish society would agree with one of their greatest writers
