Alternative Approaches to the Assessment of Achievement David McArthur, David L. McArthur, 1987-03-31 Ingrained for many years in the science of educational assessment were a large number of truths about how to make sense out of testing results artful wisdoms that appear to have held away largely by force of habit alone Practitioners and researchers only occasionally agreed about how tests should be designed and were even further apart when they came to interpreting test responses by any means other than categorically right or wrong Even the best innovations were painfully slow to be incorporated into practice The traditional approach to testing was developed to accomplish only two tasks to provide ranking of students or to select relatively small proportions of students for special treatment In these tasks it was fairly effective but it is increasingly seen as inadequate for the broader spectrum of issues that educational measurement is now called upon to address Today the range of questions being asked of educational test data is itself growing by leaps and bounds Fortunately to meet this challenge we have available a wide panoply of resource tools for assessment which deserve serious attention Many of them have exceptionally sophisticated mathematical foundations and succeed well where older and less versatile techniques fail dismally Yet no single new tool can conceivably cover the entire arena Dual-process

Theories in Social Psychology Shelly Chaiken, Yaacov Trope, 1999-02-19 This informative volume presents the first comprehensive review of research and theory on dual process models of social information processing. These models distinguish between qualitatively different modes of information processing in making decisions and solving problems: e.g. associative versus rule based, controlled versus uncontrolled, and affective versus cognitive modes. Leading contributors review the basic assumptions of these approaches and review the ways they have been applied and tested in such areas as attitudes, stereotyping, person perception, memory, and judgment. Also examined are the relationships between different sets of processing modes, the factors that determine their utilization, and how they work in combination to affect responses to social information.

Alternative Service Delivery: Readiness Check Gerald T. Gabris, Heidi O. Koenig, Kurt Thurmaier, Craig S. Maher, Kimberly L. Nelson, Katherine A. Piker, Alicia Schatteman, Dawn S. Peters, Craig Rapp, 2014-04-15 Alternative Service Delivery: Readiness Check synthesizes academic and practitioner knowledge about alternative service delivery (ASD) systems. This handbook offers information and insights that local governments can use to provide public services more effectively and efficiently. It serves as a primer about alternative service delivery intended to guide investigation of new approaches to service delivery. It derives from multiple conversations with local government practitioners in Illinois who were frustrated by a lack of guidance on how to think about alternative service delivery methods for public services and in what circumstances different alternatives were more or less successful. This handbook is written for both appointed managers and elected officials who are looking for innovative ways to consider service delivery and want to answer the basic question: Can we be doing this better Why does your local government want to consider providing public services in new alternative ways As the cases in this handbook demonstrate jurisdictions that successfully develop and implement an alternative service delivery method are driven by a desire to improve service effectiveness Local governments that move from tactical to strategic thinking about service delivery are the ones more likely to improve services using different forms of alternative service delivery The kinds of issues and types of questions examined in this handbook range from how to best handle such demand driven services as allocation of police and fire resources to how to share expensive equipment that your jurisdiction needs only some of the time The stories solutions and evidence are intended to help local government officials understand the differences between delivery alternatives and the prerequisites for developing and implementing each option
