Humans didn't tame animals animals chose to become tame Increasingly confrontational the slogans of animal rights movements state that eating meat is murder pets are slaves laboratory animals are prisoners But new studies on how the first animals came to be domesticated cast a different light on the relationship between humans and animals Rather than an act of exploitation by man domestication was a natural process In this reappraisal of the human animal bond the author shows how domestication has proved to be a successful evolutionary strategy benefiting humans and animals alike The Apocalypse, or, Book of revelations, explained according to the spiritual sense, tr. Hierarchical World Stephen L. Cook, Corrine L. Patton, 2004 Can we live with the God of Ezekiel Can we relate to a God who has established a multilayered hierarchy that separates the divine from the human who creates boundaries that segregate people from the temple the priesthood and the glory of the Lord In contrast to those who suggest that Ezekiel should no longer be read as an authoritative part of the canon the essays in this volume engage Ezekiel's hierarchical world directly neither dismissing it out of hand nor accepting it uncritically By wedding theological interest and reflection with serious biblical exegesis and criticism this work helps readers to understand Ezekiel's hierarchical theology especially the book's views on creation priesthood and land It thus equips readers to form their own evaluations of the relevance of Ezekiel's theology for today Contributors include Daniel I Block Keith Carley Stephen L Cook Katheryn Pfisterer Darr Iain M Duguid Friedrich Fechter Julie Galambush Norman Habel Risa Levitt Kohn Corrine L Patton David L Petersen Baruch J Schwartz Daniel L Smith Christopher and Steven Shawn Tuell Paperback edition is available from the Society of Biblical Literature
