Determinants of Grammatical Variation in English Günter Rohdenburg, Britta Mondorf, 2011-08-02 What factors influence the choice between alternative grammatical structures such as the following a lit a lighted cigarette more full fuller of convincing arguments the main thesis of the book the book's main thesis take hostage a group of 15 holiday makers take a group of 15 holidaymakers hostage conceding that the argument is convincing conceding the argument to be convincing This is the central issue explored in this volume which contains a unique selection of innovative in depth empirical studies written in a broadly functional framework The factors investigated include the following phonological influences such as the principle of rhythmic alternation and optimal syllable structure frequency pervasive semantic and pragmatic aspects including iconicity markedness grammaticalization and typological tendencies information structure processing complexity and horror aequi the avoidance of identity effects Explorations of Language Transfer Terence Odlin, 2022-05-13 When learners of a new language draw on their native language or on any other that they may know this earlier acquired linguistic knowledge may influence their success Such cross linguistic influence also known as language transfer has long raised questions about what linguists can predict about success in the new language and about what processes are involved in using prior knowledge This book lucidly brings together many insights on transfer e g on the relation between translation and transfer the relation between comprehension and production and the problem of how complete any predictions of difficulty may ever be The discussions also explore implications for future research and for classroom practice The book will thus serve as a reliable guide for teachers researchers translators interpreters and students curious about language contact

Corpus-Based Approaches to Metaphor and Metonymy Anatol Stefanowitsch, Stefan Th. Gries, 2008-08-22 The papers in this volume deal with the issue of how corpus data relate to the questions that cognitive linguists have typically investigated with respect to conceptual mappings The authors in this volume investigate a wide range of issues the coherence and function of particular metaphorical models the interaction of form and meaning the identification of source domains of metaphorical expressions the relationship between metaphor and discourse the priming of metaphors and the historical development of metaphors The studies deal with a variety of metaphorical and metonymic source and target domains including the source domains SPACE ANIMALS BODY PARTS ORGANIZATIONS and WAR and the target domains VERBAL ACTIVITY ECONOMY EMOTIONS and POLITICS In their studies the authors present a variety of corpus linguistic methods for the investigation of conceptual mappings for example corpora annotated for semantic categories concordances of individual source domain items and patterns and concordances of target domain items In sum the papers in this volume show how a wide range of corpus linguistic methods can be used to investigate a variety of issues in cognitive linguistics the combination of corpus methods with a cognitive linguistic view of metaphor and metonymy yields new answers to old questions and to new questions about the relationship between language as a conceptual phenomenon and language as a textual phenomenon Aspects of Meaning Construction Günter Radden, 2007-01-01 Meaning does not reside in linguistic units but is constructed in the minds of the language users Meaning construction is an on line mental activity whereby speech participants create meanings on the basis of underspecified linguistic units The construction of meaning is guided by cognitive principles The contributions collected in the volume focus on two types of cognitive principles guiding meaning construction meaning construction by means of metonymy and metaphor and meaning construction by means of mental spaces and conceptual blending The papers in the former group survey experiential evidence of figurative meaning construction and discuss high level metaphor and metonymy the role of metonymy in discourse the chaining of metonymies metonymy as an alternative to coercion and metaphonymic meanings of proper names The papers in the latter group address the issues of meaning construction prompted by personal pronouns relative clauses inferential constructions sort of expressions questions and the into causative construction Measuring Grammatical Complexity Frederick J.

Newmeyer, Laurel B. Preston, 2014 This book examines the question of whether languages can differ in grammatical complexity and if so how relative complexity differences might be measured The volume differs from others devoted to the question of complexity in language in that the authors all approach the problem from the point of view of formal grammatical theory psycholinguistics or neurolinguistics Chapters investigate a number of key issues in grammatical complexity taking phonological morphological syntactic and semantic considerations into account These include what is often called the trade off problem namely whether complexity in one grammatical component is necessarily balanced by simplicity in another and the question of interpretive complexity that is whether and how one might measure the difficulty for the hearer in assigning meaning to an utterance and how such complexity might be factored in to an overall complexity assessment Measuring Grammatical Complexity brings together a number of distinguished scholars in the field and will be of interest to linguists of all theoretical stripes from advanced undergraduate level upwards particularly those working in the areas of morphosyntax psycholinguistics neurolinguistics and cognitive linguistics Variation and Change in Morphology Franz Rainer, 2010

Metonymy and Pragmatic Inferencing Klaus-Uwe Panther, Linda L. Thornburg, 2003 In recent years conceptual metonymy has been recognized as a cognitive phenomenon that is as fundamental as metaphor for reasoning and the construction of meaning The thoroughly revised chapters in the present volume originated as presentations in a workshop organized by the editors for the 7th International Pragmatics Conference held in Budapest in 2000 They constitute according to an anonymous reviewer an interesting contribution to both cognitive linguistics and pragmatics The contributions aim to bridge the gap and encourage discussion between cognitive linguists and scholars working in a pragmatic framework Topics include the metonymic basis of explicature and implicature the role of metonymically based inferences in speech act and discourse interpretation the pragmatic meaning of grammatical constructions the impact of metonymic mappings on and their interaction with grammatical structure the role of metonymic inferencing and implicature in linguistic change and the comparison of metonymic principles across languages and different cultural settings Morphosyntactic Issues in Second Language Acquisition Danuta Gabryś, 2008 This volume presents a selection of second language acquisition studies at the level of morphosyntax It looks at different aspects of morphosyntactic development of bilingual language learners users such as language transfer syntactic processing morphology and the pragmatics of language among others The studies report on projects carried out in different language contact contexts ranging from English German Polish Greek and Turkish The volume also includes those studies which show the interface between research findings and pedagogy of foreign language teaching

English mediopassive constructions Marianne Hundt, 2015-07-14 This book provides the first empirical study of the history and spread of mediopassive constructions It investigates the productivity of the pattern the spread of the construction in Modern English and looks into text type specific preferences for the construction On a more abstract level it combines the corpus based description of mediopassive constructions with cognitive linguistic models drawing largely on notions such as prototype family resemblances patch and construction The theoretical modelling is largely based on data from real texts These come from publicly available machine readable corpora text databases and a single register corpus American mail order catalogues The study combines the corpus based approach with cognitive theories and is therefore of interest to both empirical and theoretical linguists Periphrasis and Inflexion in Diachrony Adam Ledgeway, John Charles Smith, Nigel Vincent, 2022 This volume brings together contributions from leading specialists in syntax and morphology to explore the complex relation between periphrasis and inflexion from both a synchronic and diachronic perspective The chapters draw on data from across the Romance language family including standard and regional varieties and dialects The relation between periphrasis and inflexion raises questions for both syntax and morphology and understanding the phenomena involved requires cooperation across these sub domains For example the components that express many periphrases can be interrupted by other words in a way that is common in syntax but not in morphology and in some contexts a periphrastic form may be semantically equivalent to a single word inflected form with which it arguably forms part of a paradigmatic set Patterns of this kind are found across Romance albeit with significant local differences Moreover diachrony is essential in understanding these phenomena and the rich historical documentation available for Romance allows an in depth exploration of the changes and variation involved as different members of the family may instantiate different stages of development Studying these changes also raises important questions about the relation between attested and reconstructed patterns Although the empirical focus of the volume is on the Romance languages the analyses and conclusions presented shed light on the development and nature of similar structures in other language families and provide valuable insights
