Frameworks for Policy Analysis Raul P. Lejano, 2013-02-01. Frameworks for Policy Analysis argues that in order to bring relevance back to policy analysis we need to approach policy situations as complex phenomena and employ multiple ways of looking at things in order to understand the essential elements of each policy case. The book is an exploration of distinct, sometimes radically different models for analysis, but it is also a reference for these multiple methodologies that all come under the term analysis. Along with classic and recent models, the book introduces some new concepts that serve to deepen our analysis and aspire to what Geertz calls thick description. This text, written for advanced courses in policy analysis, is an answer to the critical gap between the complexity and dimensionality of policy situations and the abstract and formal character of policy analysis in general. The book begins by introducing the reader to dominant models of analysis, pointing out their limitations and the potential for transcending these limits. It also introduces new analytical approaches that help to merge text and context, increasing the dimensionality and authenticity of the analysis.

Research Methods in Language Policy and Planning Francis M. Hult, David Cassels Johnson, 2015-07-07. Each chapter is written by a leading language policy expert and provides a how-to guide to planning studies as well as gathering and analyzing data. Covers a broad range of methods, making it easily accessible to and useful for transdisciplinary researchers working with language policy in any capacity. Will serve as both a foundational methods text for graduate students and novice researchers and a useful methodological reference for experienced LPP researchers. Includes a series of guidelines for public engagement to assist scholars as they endeavor to incorporate their work into the public policy process.

Knowledge, Evidence, and Policymaking Colette Einfeld, 2025-05-07. This book provides an insightful and nuanced account of the roles of knowledge and evidence in behavioural science practices. Utilising evidence from Australia, it draws together the fields of evidence-based policymaking and behavioural insights in order to examine how policy actors negotiate the use of scientific evidence, knowledge, lived experience, and ethics in policymaking. It also considers the ways in which different knowledges can compete in public policy and the roles of policymakers in that competition. Offering insights for both evidence-based policy processes and the application of behavioural insights more generally, the book is a valuable resource for academics and practitioners interested in behavioural sciences and the impact of different types of evidence in policymaking.

The Work of Policy Hal K. Colebatch, 2006-01-01 H K Colebatch's The Work of Policy provides an international perspective on the field of policy analysis Colebatch collects voices from around the world to consider the applicability of policy models to the actual practice of policy work International case studies demonstrate that policy work takes a variety of forms and policy analysis plays only a small role Claudia Scott addresses the changing nature of policy analysis in New Zealand due to changing priorities and a lack of well funded think tanks while Zdravko Petak's study of Croatia illustrates the development of policy analysis as part of a struggle to create a zone for critique outside the dominant central bureaucratic system Other chapters such as Kyungja Jung's look at the development of women's policy in South Korea reveal the importance of understanding policy work in the context of the historical trajectory of the political process These studies illustrate the importance of the institutional dimension in policy work the organizational framework through which it takes place the discourses in use and the values that underlie both the discourses and the organization Combining policy analysis with comparative politics this unique collection should be read by scholars around the globe who are striving to gain a better understanding of the range of practice that makes policy

Deliberating Environmental Policy in India Sunayana Ganguly, 2015-11-06 As one of the world's largest and most bio diverse countries India's approach to environmental policy will be very significant in tackling global environmental challenges This book explores the transformations that have taken place in the making of environmental policy in India since the economic liberalization of the 1990s It investigates if there has been a slow shift from top down planning to increasingly bottom up and participatory policy processes examining the successes and failures of recent environmental policies Linking deliberation to collective action this book contends that it is crucial to involve local actors in framing the policies that decide on their rights and control over bio resources in order to achieve the goal of sustainable human development The first examples of large scale participatory processes in Indian environmental policy were the 1999 National Biodiversity Strategy Action Plan and the 2006 Scheduled Tribes and Other Traditional Forest Dwellers Act This book explores these landmark policies exploring the strategies of advocacy and deliberation that led to both the successes and failures of recent initiatives It concludes that in order to deliberate with the state civil society actors must engage in forms of strategic advocacy with the power to push agendas that challenge mainstream development discourses The lessons learnt from the Indian experience will not only have immediate significance for the future of policy making in India but they will also be of interest for other countries faced with the challenges of integrating livelihood and sustainability concerns into the governance process

Meaning Making in Planning Mick Lennon, 2023-06-26 Planning theorists normally focus on issues of contest and critique The field of planning theory is thereby replete with studies of conflict collaboration and criticism Considerably less critical attention is afforded to policy approaches that emerge evolve and are widely adopted in the apparent absence of discord This book addresses this knowledge gap A case study of the emergence of green infrastructure policy in Ireland is used to both inform and illustrate a theory of Policy Entitlement This interpretive approach focuses on meaning making in context to explain the counter intuitive processes through which a new policy concept can emerge and reprofile planning activities by producing the seemingly pre existing objective reality to which such policy is then applied and the discipline re orientated This approach accounts for how a new planning concept can appear to resolve problematic policy ambiguity by suspending disagreement on issues where dispute could be expected This book will be of interest to those studying planning theory and the policy process as well as those concerned with the undertheorized but swift rise to prominence of green infrastructure planning

Analysing Policy Carol Bacchi, 2009-06-10 This book offers a novel approach to thinking about public policy and a distinctive methodology for analysing policy It introduces a set of six questions that probe how problems are represented in policies followed by an injunction to apply the questions to one s own policy proposals This form of analysis it suggests is crucial to understanding how policy works how we are governed and how the practice of policy making implicitly constitutes us as subjects The book mounts a challenge to the problem solving paradigm currently dominating the intellectual and policy landscape a paradigm manifest in evidence based policy Arguing that such a paradigm denies the shaping that goes on in the process of problematisation it offers a what s the problem represented to be approach to policy analysis as a counter discourse In this view critical thinking involves putting problems into question rather than learning how to solve them Bacchi s approach to policy analysis offers exciting insights in a wide array of policy areas including welfare drugs alcohol and gambling criminal justice health education immigration and population media and research policy Invaluable to those involved in policy studies and public administration it will also appeal to students and academics in sociology social work anthropology cultural studies and human geography

Black Women, Cultural Images and Social Policy Julia S. Jordan-Zachery, 2009-01-13 Black Women Cultural Images and Social Policy offers a critical analysis of the policy making process Jordan Zachery demonstrates how social meanings surrounding the discourses on crime welfare and family policies produce and reproduce discursive practices that maintain gender and racial hierarchies Using critical discourse analysis CDA she analyzes the values and ideologies ensconced in the various images of black womanhood and their impact on policy formation This book provides exceptional insight into the racing gendering process of policy making to show how relations of power and forms of inequality are discursively constructed and impact the lives of African American women

Regional Governance and Policy-Making in South America Anne Marie Hoffmann, 2018-10-09 This book analyzes Latin American regional integration with a novel conceptual approach grounded in extensive field research Using the UNASUR Uni n de Naciones Suramericanas as a case study the author investigates the process of policy making in regional public policy fields in South America The project focuses on intergovernmental structures of regional organizations as an institutional framework for a variety of independent processes in regions. It also challenges the perspective of democratic states as unitary actors and seeks to analyze the factors which favor or obstruct regional processes in different policy fields. This work will appeal to researchers, graduate students and anyone interested in Latin American politics and policy making.

Agency in Transnational Social Protection: Practices of Migrant Families Between Bulgaria and Germany Jana Fingarova, 2019-12-09. Agency in Transnational Social Protection: Practices of Migrant Families Between Bulgaria and Germany offers a unique and innovative research strategy analysing social protection arrangements of Bulgarian movers and their families who arrived in Germany in the context of EU enlargements. Critically approaching social tourism debates in the context of EU enlargements, this work significantly contributes to a highly undertheorized field of Bulgarian migration in Germany, more specifically in its aspect of social protection within the framework of EU social security coordination. Going beyond the state of art on migration and social protection, Jana Fingarova applies a micro sociological interpretative approach to develop a typology of migrant agency: articulations of subordination, empowerment and gradually learned assertiveness. Allowing for a temporal processual perspective on agency, the work overcomes the duality of active vs. passive agents, exposing a more complex picture apart from social or educational status. Family and individual mobility projects play a crucial role in the social protection arrangements of EU movers.

Making Gender Equality Happen Rosalind Cavaghan, 2017-05-25. In theory, the EU's Gender Mainstreaming policy should mark it out as a trail blazer in gender equality, but gender equality activists in Europe confront a knotty problem: most civil servants and policy makers can't understand how to mainstream gender. Making Gender Equality Happen argues that we should take this problem seriously. In this book, Cavaghan uncovers the social processes that make gender appear irrelevant to so many policy makers using a new method: gender knowledge contestation analysis. Building on this new perspective, Cavaghan identifies barriers to effective gender mainstreaming, mechanisms of resistance to gender mainstreaming and the steps towards positive change which gender mainstreaming can yield even when results stop short of transformation. These findings present fresh perspectives for policy makers and activists aiming to make gender equality happen. Cavaghan's new method also opens fresh avenues in feminist EU studies which are particularly relevant in the wake of the financial crisis as the EU seems to be stepping away from its commitments to gender equality.

Anti-politics, Depoliticization, and Governance Paul Fawcett (Political scientist), Matthew V. Flinders, Colin Hay, Matthew Wood (Writer in political science), 2017. There is a mounting body of evidence pointing towards rising levels of public dissatisfaction with the formal political process. Depoliticization refers to a more discrete range of contemporary strategies that add to this growing trend towards anti-politics by either removing or displacing the potential for choice, collective agency and deliberation. This book examines the relationship between these two trends as understood within the broader shift towards governance. It brings together a number of contributions from scholars who have a varied range of concerns but who nevertheless share a common interest in developing the concept of depoliticization through their engagement with a set of theoretical conceptual methodological and empirical questions This volume explores these questions from a variety of different perspectives and uses a number of different empirical examples and case studies from both within the nation state as well as from other regional global and multi level arenas In this context this volume examines the potential and limits of depoliticization as a concept and its position and contribution in the nexus between the larger and more established literatures on governance and anti politics

Multidisciplinary Approaches to Discourse Rachid Acim, Mohamed Belamghari, Mounir Sanhaji, 2025-09-13 The chapters of the book are geared towards comprehending human interactions expounding dialogism challenging dominant narratives and in the meantime deconstructing misinformation and power structures prevalent in text and talk In its essence the book is multidisciplinary as it employs various critical approaches rich conceptual frameworks and sound methodologies from a variety of schools of thought and disciplines to explain the interplay between language and power humor and laughter literature and cinema as well as poetry and meaning creation The contributors all of whom are avid researchers in the field of discourse and cultural studies elucidate the tremendous power of discourse and detail its potential implications and ramifications in contemporary times they disambiguate the nuances of some interrelated and subsidiary notions such as text and context rhetoric and the process of writing communication and silence identity and culture media and representation to mention but a few

Public Administration Norma M. Riccucci, 2010-06-16 Is public administration an art or a science This question of whether the field is driven by values or facts will never be definitively answered due to a lack of consensus among scholars The resulting divide has produced many heated debates however in this pioneering volume Norma Riccucci embraces the diversity of research methods rather than suggesting that there is one best way to conduct research in public administration Public Administration examines the intellectual origins and identity of the discipline of public administration its diverse research traditions and how public administration research is conducted today The book s intended purpose is to engage reasonable minded public administration scholars and professionals in a dialogue on the importance of heterogeneity in epistemic traditions and to deepen the field s understanding and acceptance of its epistemological scope This important book will provide a necessary overview of the discipline for graduate students and scholars

Policy Worlds Cris Shore, Susan Wright, Davide Però, 2011-04-01 There are few areas of society today that remain outside the ambit of policy processes and likewise policy making has progressively reached into the structure and fabric of everyday life An instrument of modern government policy and its processes provide an analytical window into systems of governance themselves opening up ways to study power and the construction of regimes of truth This volume argues that policies are not simply coercive constraining or confined to static texts rather they are productive continually contested and able to create new social and semantic spaces and new sets of relations Anthropologists do not stand outside or above systems of governance but are themselves subject to the rhetoric and rationalities of policy The analyses of policy worlds presented by the contributors to this volume open up new possibilities for understanding systems of knowledge and power and the positioning of academics within them
