Development Coalitions in Working Life Bjørn Gustavsen, Tom Colbjørnsen, Øyvind Pålshaugen, 1998 While the need to utilise knowledge from social research in processes of development in working life is growing there is also a growing recognition of the problems posed by this utilisation As the belief in universal reason and general theory about topics like work organization and leadership has faded research has to find a place as a local development actor As such it is part of broad groups of actors or development coalitions as they are called in this book Each coalition acquires unique characteristics and demands unique contributions from participating researchers At the same time there is still a need for generalisable knowledge since all local processes are linked to global ones Using an ongoing research supported development program in Norwegian working life as the basis this book explores the issues and problems associated with a new role for research as a mediator not between general theory and local application but between local workplace actors and global trends The program in case encompasses a substantial number of enterprises many of them organized in networks and more than 50 researchers organized in seven groups or modules Beyond Theory Stephen Toulmin, Bjørn Gustavsen, 1996-07-22 Action Research is one of the most practical and down to earth ways of doing research into working life Beyond Theory draws on examples and actual cases to discuss action research within the framework of the modern and postmodern theory of science debate While action research has been much criticized by the traditionalists the book reflects a convergence between action research and positions emerging out of the critique of scientific traditionalism Discussions between these two fields of knowledge originally so very different can enrich both The book will be useful not only to researchers and academics but to anyone who is interested in the role and use of knowledge in social and organizational development Concepts and Transformation , 1996 International Labour Documentation International Labour Organization. Central Library and Documentation Bureau, 1997-08 The SAGE Encyclopedia of Action Research David Coghlan, Mary Brydon-Miller, 2014-08-11 Action research is a term used to describe a family of related approaches that integrate theory and action with a goal of addressing important organizational community and social issues together with those who experience them It focuses on the creation of areas for collaborative learning and the design enactment and evaluation of liberating actions through combining action and research reflection and action in an ongoing cycle of cogenerative knowledge While the roots of these methodologies go back to the 1940s there has been a dramatic increase in research output and adoption in university curricula over the past decade This is now an area of high popularity among academics and researchers from various fields especially business and organization studies education health care nursing development studies and social and community work The SAGE Encyclopedia of Action Research brings together the many strands of action research and addresses the interplay between these disciplines by presenting a state of the art overview and comprehensive breakdown of the key tenets and methods of action research as well as detailing the work of key theorists and contributors to action research Organizations for Effective Product Development Takahiro Fujimoto, 1989
