Professional Care for the Elderly Mentally Ill Liz Matthew,2013-11-11 Services to older people with mental health problems have gone through radical change in recent years Legislation has had a profound effect by dictating how care to older people is delivered both within hospital and within the community The recent government agenda emphasizes cost effectiveness value for money and accountability This too is an important driving force in re evaluating the service although not everyone would agree with many of the proposed strategies and there are clearly different views as to the appropriateness of many of the services. One thing is certain however the move towards interdisciplinary working is here to stay. Not all change has been led by legislation and many innovations have been founded in the day to day practices in the care of older people with mental health problems. A service of course does not become integrated merely by imposing joint working on a number of professionally based disciplines and in many ways this may not be desirable. At its worst it produces duplication where people from different background are all doing the same job. This is not the intention of joint working instead it should attempt to improve the quality of service by a rich mix of skills and experience from a number of related disciplines.

Planned Change Theories for Nursing Constance Rimmer Tiffany, Louette R. Johnson Lutjens, 1998. In a groundbreaking publication Constance Rimmer Tiffany and Louette R Johnson Lutjens present a foundation for nurses understanding of planned change. Planned Change Theories for Nursing contains overviews of three widely accepted change theories and a new systems oriented planned change theory and shows the implications of these theories for nursing practice. The first section of this book offers a thoughtful overview of the issues involved in the use of planned change theories beginning with the rationale for studying planned change theories and important points to consider in choosing among them. The authors then explore the role of power in change and discuss moral and ethical questions involved in planned change. The final chapter in this section addresses the diagnostic process innovations as solutions and the evaluation of planned change. Chapter 9 serves as a transition in which the authors reflect on the implications of planned change in a representative nursing model the well known Roy Adaptation Model. This chapter also provides a nursing orientation for Part II in which the authors examine in turn Lewin's micro theories Bennis Benne and Chin's planned change writings the Rogers Diffusion Model and Bhola's Configurations Model. For each of these theories or models the authors present an overview an analysis and critique and a discussion entitled Altering the Peg in which the theories are individually viewed in light of the key concepts in the Roy Adaptation Model. The book concludes with a discussion of the theoretical underpinnings for carrying out planned change research and incorporating research findings in nursing practice. In addition the appendixes provide a wealth of source information for the theories discussed.
