Conceptual Learning and Development Herbert John Klausmeier, Elizabeth Schwenn Ghatala, Dorothy Ann Frayer, 1974     Development of Conceptual Learning and Development Assessment Series III, 1973

Development of Conceptual Learning and Development Assessment Series IV Herbert John Klausmeier, 1974     The Relationship Between Conceptual Learning and Development, Concept Achievement, Educational Achievement, and Selected Cognitive Abilities Winston Emile Rampaul, 1975     Early Learning and Development Marilyn Fleer, Mariane Hedegaard, 2010-04-19

Early Learning and Development provides a unique synthesis of cultural historical theory from Vygotsky Elkonin and Leontiev in the twentieth century to the ground breaking research of scholars such as Siraj Blatchford Kratsova and Hedegaard today It demonstrates how development and learning are culturally embedded and institutionally defined and it reflects specifically upon the implications for the early childhood profession Divided into parts with succinct chapters that build upon knowledge progressively the everyday lives of children at home in the community at pre school and at school are discussed in the context of child development and pedagogy The book explicitly problematises the foundations of early childhood education inviting postgraduates researchers and academics to drill down into specific areas of international discourse and extending upper level undergraduates beyond the fundamental underpinnings of their learning Ultimately Early Learning and Development offers new models of conceptual play practice and theory within a globally resonant cultural historical framework     Development of Conceptual Learning and Development Assessment Series II Herbert John Klausmeier, 1973     Resources in Education, 1998     Development of Conceptual Learning and Development Assessment Series I, 1973     Concepts, Kinds, and Cognitive Development Frank C. Keil, 1992-01-30

In Concepts Kinds and Cognitive Development Frank C Keil provides a coherent account of how concepts and word meanings develop in children adding to our understanding of the representational nature of concepts and word meanings at all ages Keil argues that it is impossible to adequately understand the nature of conceptual representation without also considering the issue of learning Weaving together issues in cognitive development philosophy and cognitive psychology he reconciles numerous theories backed by empirical evidence from nominal kinds studies natural kinds studies and studies of fundamental categorical distinctions He shows that all this evidence when put together leads to a better understanding of semantic and conceptual development The book opens with an analysis of the problems of modeling qualitative changes in conceptual development investigating how concepts of natural kinds nominal kinds and artifacts evolve The studies on nominal kinds document a powerful and unambiguous developmental pattern indicating a shift from a reliance on global tabulations of characteristic features to what appears to be a small set of defining ones The studies on natural kinds document an analogous shift toward a core theory instead of simple definition Both sets of studies are strongly supported by cross cultural data While these patterns seem to suggest that the young child organizes concepts according to characteristic features Keil argues that there is a framework of conceptual categories and causal beliefs that enables even very young children to understand kinds at a deeper theoretically guided level This account suggests a new way of understanding qualitative change and carries strong implications for how concepts are represented at any point in development A Bradford Book

Katzenmeyer, Herbert John Klausmeier, 1977 Handbook of Adult Development and Learning Carol Hoare, 2006-03-30 Adult development and learning have always existed as two separate fields of study with development falling under psychology and learning under education Recent advances in theory research and practice however have made it clear that an important reciprocal relationship exists between them advances in development frequently lead to learning and conversely learning quite often fuels development The synchronicity between development and learning is responsible for positive changes in many capacities including insight intelligence reflective and meta cognition personality expression interpersonal competence and self efficacy This synchronicity is also leading to the growth of a new discipline at the borders of adult development and learning The Handbook of Adult Development and Learning is the first to bring together the leading scholars from both adult development and learning to explore what will form the foundation for this new discipline the latest research at the intersection of these fields It examines six major aspects of their intersection foundations key areas of integration the self system higher reaches of development and learning essential contexts and specific applications An introductory chapter explains why it is so important to recognize and fuel the growth of this new discipline Subsequent chapters review the latest theoretical and empirical literature and provide a rich itinerary for future research This handbook is a must read for all who promote optimal aging It will be an invaluable reference for scholars in development and education as well as rich resource for policy makers and practitioners such as corporate executives and human resource personnel

Lawson, 2006-04-11 A goal of mine ever since becoming an educational researcher has been to help construct a sound theory to guide instructional practice For far too long educational practice has suffered because we have lacked firm instructional guidelines which in my view should be based on sound psychological theory which in turn should be based on sound neurological theory In other words teachers need to know how to teach and that how to teach should be based solidly on how people learn and how their brains function As you will see in this book my answer to the question of how people learn is that we all learn by spontaneously generating and testing ideas Idea generating involves analogies and testing requires comparing predicted consequences with actual consequences We learn this way because the brain is essentially an idea generating and testing machine But there is more to it than this The very process of generating and testing ideas results not only in the construction of ideas that work i e the learning of useful declarative knowledge but also in improved skill in learning i e the development of improved procedural knowledge
