

The background of the cover is a dramatic, dark blue and black illustration. It depicts a large, multi-story building, possibly a government or military installation, with a prominent flagpole on the left. The building is partially obscured by shadows and appears to be situated on a rocky or uneven terrain. In the foreground, there are dark, jagged shapes that could be rocks or debris. The sky is filled with several aircraft, including what look like biplanes and larger, more modern planes, flying in various directions. The overall atmosphere is one of mystery and suspense, with a strong emphasis on the military or espionage theme.

Confessions Of A Thirteenth Man:

Confessions of a Thirteenth Man John Harms,1999-01-01 For years John Harms dreamed he would play Test cricket He dreamed of sweet off drives long haul flights and days of champagne punting Reality however intervened in the form of an observable absence of ability a peerless resistance to hard work and a complete lack of style So he became a Test tourist in his own way on a shoestring budget at the wheel of his dodgy Camira he followed the Ashes series around Australia To perform this difficult feat he needed to overcome the distraction of a dangerous and clever woman named Grace Confessions of a Thirteenth Man is the riotously funny account of Harms adventures on the road and inside cricket s fields of glory It s a story of painful love nifty mechanical solutions and the shared joy of sport Australia s rich sporting culture has at last found the chronicler it deserves

The Pearl John Harms,2005 This is the story of Steve Renouf a brilliant Aboriginal rugby league players It is the story of his family heritage his childhood and of his emergence as a try scoring centre It is also the story of how he and his childhood sweetheart fought for their love in the face of community prejudices and Steve s journey from a small country town to play for the Brisbane Broncos Queensland and Australia Sold by the Millions Louise Lightfoot,Amit Sarwal,2011-12-08 Australian genre fiction writers have successfully exploited the Australian landscape and peoples and as a result their books are today sold by the millions across boundaries They have created stories that are imaginative visionary and diverse They appeal to local and international readerships and most importantly are thoroughly entertaining thus making them a strong presence in the popular fiction bazaar Sold by the Millions Australia s Bestsellers is the first collection to concentrate on Australia s best selling material that forms the armchair reading of many Australians Leading experts of popular fiction provide introspective pieces on Romance Horror Crime Science Fiction Western Comics Travel Sports and Children s writing so that a wholesome picture emerges of the wide range of reading and research options available for scholars

Augustine Saint Augustine (Bishop of Hippo.),Edward Bouverie Pusey,1840 Work in Ancient and Medieval Thought B. van de Hoven,2023-01-16 The main object of this study is to find out whether the differences between classical and medieval thinking about work occupations and technology are so significant that we are justified in speaking of a real break between Antiquity and the Middle Ages in this connection or whether there is a possible continuity of ideas From a comparative perspective five themes are being researched to shed light on this question In the first two chapters the author looks into the traditional view of negative ideas about work in Antiquity Chapter three subsequently deals with monks and their attitude towards labour In chapter four the place of the so called artes mechanicae in medieval classifications of knowledge is being studied In chapter five we find an analysis of twelfth century sermons ad status These three chapters principally deal with the question whether Christianity brought about a change in attitude towards work

Sin and Confession on the Eve of the Reformation Thomas N. Tentler,2015-03-08 Although John Calvin often likened sacramental confession to butchery the Council of Trent declared that for those who approached it worthily it was made easy by its great benefits and consolations Thomas Tentler describes and evaluates the effectiveness of sacramental confession as a functioning institution designed to cause guilt as well as cure guilt seeing it in its proper place as a part of the social fabric of the Middle Ages The author examines the institution of confession in practice as well as in theory providing an analysis of a practical literature whose authors wanted to explain as clearly as they safely could what confessors and penitents had to believe do feel say and intend if sacramental confession were to forgive sins In so doing he recreates the mentality and experience that the Reformers attacked and the Counter Reformers defended Central to his thesis is the contention that Luther Calvin and the Fathers of Trent regarded religious institutions as the solution to certain social and psychological problems and that an awareness of this attitude is important for an assessment of the significance of confession in late medieval and Reformation Europe Originally published in 1977 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905
