Agoraphobia And Panic:

Panic Disorder and Agoraphobia Borwin Bandelow, Katharina Domschke, David Baldwin, 2013-11-21 Panic disorder is characterized by sudden unexpected attacks of intense fear and anticipatory anxiety. Panic attacks include symptoms such as palpitations, dyspnoea, dizziness, trembling, gastrointestinal discomfort, and fear of dying. Therefore, patients with panic disorder often assume physical illnesses may underlie their symptoms. They frequently consult psychiatrists and psychologists but also general practitioners, cardiologists, neurologists, and other medical specialists. Part of the Oxford Psychiatry Library series, this pocketbook will serve as a concise and practical manual for the management of patients with panic disorder in clinical practice. It provides a user-friendly guide to the diagnosis, etiology, and treatment of patients with panic disorder and agoraphobia.

Anxiety Bozzano G. Luisa, 2013-10-22 This volume analyses the perplexing and often disabling form of distress known as anxiety from a psychological rather than a biomedical perspective, illustrating the rich contribution that psychological theory has made and is making to this topic. The first section extensively examines the clinical literature describing and delineating, with case examples, the cluster of characteristic features termed panic anxiety. Research findings in other clinical areas such as alcohol dependence are shown to have conceptual and empirical links with panic anxiety. The second section of the book reviews and evaluates the main theoretical approaches to anxiety, including specific models of panic and agoraphobia, challenging many traditional assumptions and advocating the analysis of anxiety as a socially constructed meaning imposed on experience rather than a theoretical concept or psychopathological state. The methodological implications are discussed, and a schematic model of panic anxiety is proposed. The theoretical integration represents a major contribution to the resurgence of interest in this field and will be of relevance to all researchers and postgraduate students within the mental health professions.

FROM THE PREFACE This book has two main objectives. The first is to describe a dimension of psychological distress I have called panic anxiety. This takes up the first part of the book, which surveys literature that is primarily descriptive and psychiatric. The second objective is pursued in the second part of the book, in which I examine a large number of theories of anxiety to see what they might have to offer in explaining the panic anxiety cluster of complaints. I am therefore concerned to apply psychological theory to a real world problem that is to what people who seek professional help loosely describe as panic anxiety and fears of public situations. The theoretical and experimental literature on anxiety is so vast that I have had to be disciplined and in no small measure prejudiced in favour of a particular theoretical perspective. I have attempted as far as possible to treat anxiety as a lay construct that is as a social construction and not a scientific concept. For this reason I have endeavoured to refer to reports of anxiety or to complaints of anxiety in order to avoid the common tendency to reify anxiety as an entity which exists independently of the social origins of the term. Accordingly I believe that the relevant question to ask is not What is anxiety but What are the antecedents of reports or complaints of anxiety. It is intended that this book should provide a coherent perspective on a common form of psychological distress of value to therapists researchers and students of abnormal psychology In many ways the problems for which people seek help do not define natural areas of scientific research and so it is difficult to combine theoretical and practical interests in one book The complaints with which I am particularly concerned panic and fears of public places can be analysed to reveal scientific questions which have a significance much wider than the explanation of particular complaints made to professionals working in a clinical context Apart from its obvious social significance a clinical area is therefore simply a point of departure for scientific investigation My intention then is to use this clinical area as an illustration of how such problems might be tackled from a theoretical perspective which is essentially psychological The theoretical position I have adopted owes much to the views of Sarbin 1964 1968 Mandler 1975 and Averill 1980a b In taking anxiety to be a lay construct I assume that the What is questions rightly belong to the sociology of knowledge Of course the applied psychologist also has substantive issues to consider Overcoming Panic, 2nd Edition Vijaya Manicavasagar, Derrick Silove, 2017-10-05 Overcome the crippling effects of panic attacks and agoraphobia Do you sometimes feel overwhelmed by feelings of panic that seem to come from nowhere and yet feel terrifyingly real Do you avoid certain situations because you think you ll experience a panic attack If so this step by step self help course can give you the necessary skills to overcome and prevent such attacks and the associated agoraphobia Based on cognitive behavioural therapy CBT techniques and the authors many years of experience and expertise in treating this disabling condition it offers an indispensable guide for anyone affected including sufferers their friends and families psychologists and those working in the medical profession Explains the many forms and causes of panic Contains a complete self help program and monitoring sheets Based on clinically proven techniques of cognitive therapy Overcoming Panic and Agoraphobia Derrick Silove, Vijaya Manicavasagar, 2012-11-01 Overcoming Panic and Agoraphobia provides a step by step management program that provides the necessary skills for overcoming and preventing panic attacks and associated agoraphobia This is an indispensable guide for those affected by panic disorders but is also an important resource for friends and families psychologists and those working in the medical profession Explains the many forms and causes of panic Contains a complete self help program and monitoring sheets Is based on clinically proven techniques of cognitive therapy Treatment of Panic Disorder with and Without Agoraphobia Karen Patrias, 1991 Panic and Phobias 2 Iver Hand, Hans-Ulrich Wittchen, 2012-12-06 This volume reports in four sections the most recent developments of treatments in anxiety disorders The current well elaborated though partly controversial behavioral cognitive psychophysiological and biological concepts for treatment of anxiety disorders are carefully evaluated Part I Part II discusses results of the short and long term effectiveness of the respective treatment methods their side effects and failures Promising new basic experimental and clinical studies from twenty research centers in Europe Australia and the United States shed new light on the relevant behavioral and biological variables and mechanisms involved in the development Part III as well as in the course and outcome of anxiety

This book is for people who experience the type of fear that prevents them from doing what most of us take for granted It is for the person who is frightened to leave the house or go very far from the house who cannot go into shops or pubs wait in a queue travel on a bus or train go to a cinema or theatre or have a meal in a restaurant It is for those of you who feel panic stricken if you are left alone in the house or if you have to enter a small enclosed space such as a lift or bus From time to time some of you may have experienced the very unpleasant sensation that you were not real or that things around you were not real Others may have experienced the terror of a panic attack Constructing Panic Lisa Capps,Elinor Ochs,1995

Offering a novel analysis of a patient's experience of agoraphobia this collaboration between a clinical psychologist and a linguist proposes a view of agoraphobia as a communicative disorder. It opens up potential for linguistic and narrative analysis by revealing the roots of panic and by establishing a framework for therapeutic intervention. Agoraphobia Robyn Vines, 1987

Mastery of Your Anxiety and Panic Michelle G. Craske, David H. Barlow, 2007-03 Panic disorder patients use primary care services at three times the rate of other patients thus creating the need for an effective time limited Cognitive Behavioral Therapy CBT treatment program for anxiety and panic that can be delivered in these settings. The authors modified their anxiety and panic treatment program to be delivered in six visits with a behavioral health specialist in the primary care clinic. Panic S. Rachman, Jack D. Maser, 2013-05-13 The topic of panic has been dominated by biological studies in many areas of anxiety research. This collection of papers resulting from the National Institute of Mental Health Conferences presents the viewpoints of clinical researchers assessing the state of the anxiety field. Contributors to this volume argue that biological data can be encompassed in psychological theory. Panic and Agoraphobia Scale (PAS) Borwin Bandelow, 1999 Contains 13 questions that assess the severity of PDA and monitor treatment efficacy in 5 subscores: panic attacks, agoraphobic avoidance, anticipatory anxiety, disability and worries about health. Free from Fears Ann Seagrave, Faison Covington, 1987

Panic and Phobias Iver Hand, Hans-Ullrich Wittchen, 2012-12-06 Isaac Marks Institute of Psychiatry London Human emotion seems to have changed. Westphal's perceptive label. Many factor analytic studies in Europe and the USA since DSM III burst on the world in 1980. The mere fear or anxiety that people used showed that fears of public places are salient in this problem and that such agoraphobia has been transformed into dramatic phobic panic and avoidance was also free panic attacks and it has become vital to know whether 3 of these occurred over the recently accompanied by other nonphobic nonsituational features like tonic tension last 3 weeks. A rash of papers has appeared proving that panic disorder is a disease and phasic panics independent of any with a specific genetic background, childhood special cue, depression and depersonalization, antecedents, biological markers and iatrogenesis. Unlike agoraphobia, panic is a pharmacological treatment. With alacrity rather nonspecific term Spontaneous panic, panic disorder has been clutched to the chest almost as frequent in anxious depression, psychiatric bosom as proof of our medical as in panic disorder while phobic panic is a identity hallmark of nearly all severe phobias.
