Agricultural Decision Making Anthropological Contributions To Rural Development:

Agricultural Decision Making Peggy F. Barlett, 2013-10-22 Agricultural Decision Making Anthropological Contributions to Rural Development presents the impact of farmers' choices in agricultural production. This book discusses how individual decisions determine household profits and well-being, capital requirements, land use, and the adoption of technology. Organized into three parts encompassing 14 chapters, this book begins with an overview of the theoretical and methodological questions concerning the use of formal models in evaluating the alternatives open to farmers. This text then explores the patterns of agricultural choices within one rural community. Other chapters consider the implications of decision making research for agricultural development policy and explore the decision making context of aid programs. This book discusses as well the impacts of nonagricultural alternatives on agricultural decisions. The final chapter deals with various policy and development programs for agricultural development. This book is a valuable resource for economic anthropologists, historians, economists, agricultural economists, rural sociologists, psychologists, farmers, and research workers.

The volume is a remarkable contribution to economic anthropology and will no doubt be a fundamental tool for students, scholars, and experts in the sub-discipline. Mao Mollona, Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute. This excellent overview would serve as an excellent text for advanced undergraduate and graduate level classroom use. Because of the clarity, conciseness, and accessibility of the writing, the chapters in this volume likely will be often cited and recommended to those who want the alternative and frequently culturally comparative perspective on economic topics that anthropology provides. Highly recommended. All academic levels libraries. K. F. Rambo, Choice. The first edition of this unique Handbook was praised for its substantial and invaluable summary discussions of work by anthropologists on economic processes and issues on the relationship between economic and non-economic areas of life and on the conceptual orientations that are important.

Landscape, Process and Power Serena Heckler, 2012 In recent years the field of study variously called local indigenous or traditional environmental knowledge TEK has experienced a crisis brought about by the questioning of some of its basic assumptions. This has included reassessing notions that scientific methods can accurately elicit and describe TEK or that incorporating it into development projects will improve the physical social or economic well being of marginalized peoples. The contributors to this volume argue that to accurately and appropriately describe TEK the historical and political forces that have shaped it as well as people's day to day engagement with the landscape around them must be taken into account. TEK thus emerges not as an easily translatable tool for development experts but as a rich and complex element of contemporary lives that should be defined and managed by indigenous and local peoples themselves.

Anthropology and Development Jean-Pierre Oliver De-Sardan, 2008-02-29 This book re-establishes the relevance of mainstream anthropological and sociological approaches to development processes and simultaneously recognizes that contemporary development ought to be anthropology's principal area of study. Professor de Sardan argues for a socio anthropology of change and development that is a deeply empirical multidimensional diachronic study of social groups and their interactions. The Introduction provides a thought provoking examination of the principal new approaches that have emerged in the discipline during the 1990s. Part I then makes clear the complexity of social change and development and the ways in which socio anthropology can measure up to the challenge of this complexity. Part II looks more closely at some of the leading variables involved in the development process including relations of production the logics of social action the nature of knowledge forms of mediation and political strategies.

Reluctant Aid Or Aiding the Reluctant? Steven Varnis, 1990-01-01 Makes a persuasive case that the Marxist government of Ethiopia induced famine and was reluctant to obtain or use this benevolent aid to provide effective relief until its contribution to the achievement of revolutionary goals could be assured. Varnis skillfully documents the intricacies of PVO private voluntary organization actions to merge government donor and recipient policies. In so doing he successfully refutes Third World dependency theory doctrines but paints a gloomy picture of continuing food deficits in Ethiopia's future. T M Vestal Choice A welcome contribution. He provides a detailed clear headed and accurate analysis of U S famine relief to Ethiopia in 1983-86 when good aid was used by the Marxist Leninist regime for political military and ideological ends. Asks all the rights questions and provides most of the right answers. Michael Radu Orbis This book undertakes a systematic analysis of responsibilities for the 1983-86 Ethiopian famine and its relief drawing upon a wide range of materials and personal observation in Ethiopia itself The policy sources of the famine are described in detail assessing regional variations in Ethiopian food policy and the inducement of famine

Peasants on the Edge William P. Mitchell,2010-07-05 Throughout Latin America and the rest of the Third World profound social problems are growing in response to burgeoning populations and unstable economic and political systems In Peru terrorist acts by the Shining Path guerilla movement are the most visible manifestation of social discontent but rapid economic and religious changes have touched the lives of almost everyone radically altering traditional lifeways In this twenty year study of the community of Quinoa in the Department of Ayacucho William Mitchell looks at changes provoked by population growth within a severely limited ecological and economic setting including increasing conversion to a cash economy and out migration the decline of the Catholic fiesta system and the rise of Protestantism and growing poverty and revolution When Mitchell first began his field studies in Quinua in 1966 farming was still the Quinua's principal means of livelihood But while the population was increasing rapidly the amount of arable land in the community remained the same creating increased food shortfalls At the same time government controls on food prices and subsidies of cheap food imports drove down the value of rural farm production These ecological and economic factors forced many people to enter the nonfarm economy to feed themselves Using a materialist approach Mitchell charts the new economic strategies that Quinua uses to confront the harsh pressures of their lives including ceramic production wage labor petty commerce and migration to cash work on the coast and in the eastern tropical forests In addition he shows how the growing conversion from Catholicism to Protestantism is also an economic strategy since Protestant ideology offers acceptable reasons for redirecting the money that used to be spent on elaborate religious festivals to household needs and education The twenty year span of this study makes it especially valuable for students of social change Mitchell's unique interdisciplinary approach considering ecological economic and population factors simultaneously offers a model that can be widely applied in many Third World areas Additionally the inclusion of an entire chapter of family histories reveals how economic and ecological forces are played out at the individual level
