Martial Arts as Embodied Knowledge D. S. Farrer, John

Whalen-Bridge, 2011-12-01 This landmark work provides a wide ranging scholarly consideration of the traditional Asian martial arts. Most of the contributors to the volume are practitioners of the martial arts and all are keenly aware that these traditions now exist in a transnational context. The book's cutting edge research includes ethnography and approaches from film literature performance and theater studies. Three central aspects emerge from this book: martial arts as embodied fantasy as a culturally embedded form of self cultivation and as a continuous process of identity formation. Contributors explore several popular and highbrow cultural considerations including the career of Bruce Lee, Chinese wuxia films and Don DeLillo's novel Running Dog. Ethnographies explored describe how the social body trains in martial arts and how martial arts are constructed in transnational training. Ultimately this academic study of martial arts offers a focal point for new understandings of cultural and social beliefs and of practice and agency.

Jujutsu and Judo in the West Michael

DeMarco, 2018-04-24 The late 19th century saw a dynamic growth of contacts between Western countries and the Far East. Along with the increase in travel came a wave of educational opportunities for Americans and Europeans to gain first hand experience of living in countries such as China, India and Japan. Likewise adventurous individuals from the Orient made their way to the West. Scholars, politicians and business people became experts in their adopted culture. Some learned the native language and became experts in their second culture, often writing and lecturing on a variety of topics including martial traditions. By the early 20th century a number of Japanese jujutsu and judo instructors were teaching their exotic arts in Germany, Spain, the United Kingdom and the United States. How were these instructors viewed by those in their host countries? What similarities and differences were seen between the Japanese combatives and the local traditions such as Catch as Catch Can, Greco Roman and Pancrase wrestling and styles of boxing? Chapters in this anthology present an excellent overview of the early days when jujutsu and judo took foothold in the USA and Europe with particular emphasis on England and the influence of The Budokwai in London, which as noted on Wikipedia is the oldest Japanese martial arts club in Europe. It was founded in 1918 by Gunji Koizumi and initially offered tuition in jujutsu, kendo and other Japanese arts. It was the first judo club in Europe. This anthology offers a historical view of how and why jujutsu and judo became living traditions in the West and developed over the decades. There are six technical chapters by David Finch, well known for his knowledge of judo and famed for his professional photography. The last chapter is a fitting finale presenting a comprehensive history and technical description of The Budokwai Kime no kata, a judo kata created during the earlier period of the institute. The fourteen chapters in this anthology, most from the Journal of Asian Martial Arts and a few newer writings, also discuss many of the leading practitioners of jujutsu and judo. As these arts adapted and transformed to Western countries, the purpose and modes of practice have also changed. This is important for all to study since knowledge of the past is vital for how these forms of combat and sport will evolve in the future.
