Pamela T. Amoss, Stevan Harrell, 1981 As anthropologists we offer this book about aging in a wide variety of human societies in the hope of its making three contributions First this book will help to remedy a massive neglect of old age by the discipline of anthropology The pioneering work of Leo Simmons 1945 has remained a lonely monument since the 1940 s for despite recent interest in the subject of aging in modern Western societies on the part of social gerontologists and sociologists little has been done by anthropologists on aging in non Western societies Where it has been treated at all it has been in the form either of a few final paragraphs in the discussion of the life cycle or of a simple ethnographic fact among other facts about a certain social system What has been missing has been any attempt to put aging in a cross cultural or comparative perspective to give this vital subject the same treatment that has been accorded marriage for example or death or inheritance or sex roles Second this book will bring a needed cross cultural perspective to the study of social gerontology The recent explosion of interest in this field has been largely confined to the study of aging in North America and Europe But we anthropologists feel that such a culturally limited study though interesting and productive in its own right is dangerously narrow if it does not consider what aging is like in other societies What aspects of aging for example are human universals and have to be planned for as inevitable and what aspects are cultural particulars and can be avoided modified or strengthened under certain social conditions By presenting both a biological account of the universals of human aging Weiss and specific ethnographic accounts of aging in a wide variety of societies we believe we can help to put North American aging into perspective Third we hope this book will serve as an illustration of a particular anthropological approach to unity and diversity in human societies and cultures Perhaps the main task of sociocultural anthropology is a twofold one the explanation of cross cultural universals somehow rooted either in the biological nature of the human species or in universal imperatives of social organization and the explanation of intercultural variations rooted in a dialectical interaction between culture and the material conditions partially created by culture in which it exists If unity and diversity can indeed be explained in this way the cross cultural study of aging can serve as a paradigm By first setting out what seem to be the universals determined by the biology of the human species and by then exploring the range of variation in cultural solutions we ought to be able to formulate a set of principles that will allow us to explain why variations occur in a certain way Nine ethnographic case studies are enough we believe to enable us to formulate some preliminary hypotheses about the nature and causes of variation in the social process of aging I Love Growing Older, But I'll Never Grow Old Dr. J. Ellsworth Kalas, 2013-04-01 Growing older is a process Growing old is a conclusion If you re growing older you see some hope because you have perspective and you keep learning If you ve grown old you may cynically think that times have never been as bad as they are now and that they can only get worse This book is about learning how to make peace with where you are right now

It is about learning from the past and then moving past it. It is about growing personally, spiritually, and in our relationships with God and with others. If we think properly about growing older, we will never have to grow old. A discussion guide is included.

Loving Later Life Frits de Lange, 2015-04-27. Is loving later life possible? In our youth-obsessed culture, nobody enjoys growing old. We normally fear our own aging and generally do not love old people; they remind us that death is inescapable, the body frail, and social status transitory. In Loving Later Life, Frits de Lange shows how an ethics of love can acknowledge and overcome this fear of aging and change our attitude toward the elderly. De Lange reframes the biblical love command this way: We must care for the aging other as we care for our own aging selves. We can encourage positive self-love by embracing life as we age, taking good care of our own aging bodies, staying good friends with ourselves, and valuing the last season of life. When we cultivate this kind of self-love, we are released from our aversion to growing old and set free to care about others who are aging: our parents, our relatives, and others in their final season of life.

Contesting Aging & Loss Janice Elizabeth Graham, Peter H. Stephenson, 2010-01-01. This volume invites readers to re-imagine the losses of aging by listening to the views of elders themselves. Researchers, students of aging, and policy makers should find this work most enlightening.

Living - Participating - Growing Old Anton Amann, 2023-01-24. Life must be understood as the result of evolution, and human life as the emergence of the species Sapiens from the genus Homo of the family of apes. If the emergence of human life as an evolutionary fact is coupled with the notion of social life, we are referred to the constructive production of human life forms of which social participation is an integral part. On the one hand, participation is tied back to the phylogenesis of the species Sapiens, but on the other hand, it has to be newly acquired and practiced by every human being in the process of ontogenesis, depending on the environment. Participation in old age is a separate specification of the conditions of this process and can be illustrated on the basis of a large number of empirical findings. This book is a translation of an original German edition. The translation was done with the help of artificial intelligence machine translation by the service DeepL.com. A subsequent human revision was done primarily in terms of content so that the book will read stylistically differently from a conventional translation.

Subjective Views of Aging Yuval Palgi, Amit Shrira, Manfred Diehl, 2022-08-26. This book focuses on the concept of subjective views of aging. This concept refers to the way individuals conceptualize and perceive the aging process. Social and cultural perceptions regarding older adults are incorporated and internalized into views people hold regarding their own aging process. The book contains three parts which present theoretical, empirical, and translational perspectives about subjective views of aging. The theoretical section expands the framework of subjective views of aging with the inclusion of additional concepts and further integrates these concepts by accounting for their synergistic effects. The empirical section presents recent developments in the field, starting at the intra-individual level as assessed by ecological momentary assessments, going through the level of interpersonal relationships, and concluding at the social and cultural levels. Finally, the translational section presents recent endeavours to develop interventions aimed at advancing favourable views of aging This cutting edge edited book includes chapters written by internationally renowned scholars in the field and serves as an up to date resource for scholars in the field as well as a textbook for students in courses like social gerontology lifespan psychology and life course sociology

Growing Old in El Barrio Judith Freidenberg,2000-08 In Growing Old in El Barrio Judith Noemi Freidenberg addresses the life course and daily experiences of the elderly residents of El Barrio She interweaves the economy of immigrant neighborhoods with the personal experiences of Latinos aging in Harlem Freidenberg further links policy issues such as persistent poverty in urban enclaves and the provision of health and social services to an aging population to social issues critical to the daily lives of this population

Ethics, Health Policy and (Anti-) Aging: Mixed Blessings Maartje Schermer,Wim Pinxten,2014-07-08 This volume focuses on the ethical and philosophical issues that arise in an aging society and the implications of these issues for healthcare and social policy After a brief overview of biomedicine s changing approach of ageing and longevity and of the new expectations that these changes generate various ethical social and policy issues that surround aging and longevity are discussed First the images and social meanings of aging and old age in our society are explored including their normative dimensions and implications for policy Next ethical issues in the care for frail elderly are discussed as well as notion of good care and end of life decisions Finally the ethical and social implications of emerging possibilities for anti aging and lifespan extension are considered The book concludes with an overview of the relevance of the issues discussed for policy making on professional national and international levels

The Case against Death Ingemar Patrick Linden,2022-02-01 A philosopher refutes our culturally embedded acceptance of death arguing instead for the desirability of anti aging science and radical life extension Ingemar Patrick Linden s central claim is that death is evil In this first comprehensive refutation of the most common arguments in favor of human mortality he writes passionately in favor of antiaging science and radical life extension We may be on the cusp of a new human condition where scientists seek to break through the arbitrarily set age limit of human existence to address aging as an illness that can be cured The book however is not about the science and technology of life extension but whether we should want more life For Linden the answer is a loud and clear yes The acceptance of death is deeply embedded in our culture Linden examines the views of major philosophical voices of the past whom he calls death s ardent advocates These include the Buddha Socrates Plato Lucretius and Montaigne All have taught what he calls the Wise View namely that we should not fear death After setting out his case against death Linden systematically examines each of the accepted arguments for death that aging and death are natural that death is harmless that life is overrated that living longer would be boring and that death saves us from overpopulation He concludes with a dialogue concerning the badness of human mortality Though Linden acknowledges that The Case Against Death is a negative polemic he also defends it as optimistic in that the badness of death is a function of the goodness of life

A World Growing Old Daniel Callahan,1996-08-01 For much of the developed world health care for a surging elderly population looms as one of the most daunting problems of the coming decade In this book contributors from diverse disciplinary backgrounds and countries discuss resource allocation for the elderly and debate plans for the years ahead Essays focus on five general issues the meaning of old age the goals of medicine and health care for the elderly the balance between the needs of the young and old the pressures of other social priorities and the role of families especially the burden on women in long term care In consideration of the difficult moral and practical issues involved the editors conclude the volume with a special report containing policy recommendations from representatives of eight countries the United States Belgium the Czech Republic Germany Hungary the Netherlands Sweden and the United Kingdom This important volume will be of interest to policymakers and a broad spectrum of health care professionals as well as to anyone interested in the fate of the elderly or in coming health care challenges

The Promise of Immortality William AMZALLAG, 2016-09-22
