also inspire academics from a range of disciplines to update rewrite and offer new courses on neglected crimes and victimisations Technology and Nationalism in India Rohit Chopra,2008 This book examines the phenomenon of technocultural Hindu nationalism or the use of the internet by global Indian communities for the promotion of Hindu nationalist ideologies Since the introduction of Western science and technology under colonial rule in the eighteenth century science and technology have been used as instruments of transforming Indian society Scientific and technological expertise have been authorized as essential attributes of a modern Indian selfhood And the possessors of technological skills have historically been vested with the authority to speak for the nation The associations between technology and nationalism have condensed in ideas about self and other they have been incorporated in imaginings of the state and the nation and they have materialized as claims about identity community and society In the present historical moment this relationship manifests itself in one form as an online Hindu nationalism that combines cultural majoritarian claims with technological triumphalism Technocultural Hindu nationalism yokes together the core proposition of Hindu nationalist doctrine the idea that India is a Hindu nation and that religious minorities are outsiders to it with arguments about the imminent rise of Hindu India as a technological superpower in the global capitalist economy of the twenty first century Additionally while technocultural Hindu nationalism is obsessed with Western technology it also defines itself in strategic respects in opposition to Western civilization On Hindu nationalist websites this apparent paradox is resolved through the construction of a narrative where Hinduism is defined as the historical and philosophical foundation of global capitalist modernity itself and Hindus are presented as the natural heirs to that heritage This book locates these and other characteristics of Hindu nationalist identity politics in cyberspace with reference to the relationship between technology and nationalism in India from the period of British colonial rule in the mid eighteenth century to the present era of an economically and technologically interconnected world This book argues that technocultural Hindu nationalism needs to be understood in terms of the general dynamic of technology and nationalism with its continuities and discontinuities through the period of colonial rule till Indian independence in 1947 the period of Nehruvian nationalism with its emphasis on technological development in a socialist framework and the current post 1991 context following the liberalization of the Indian economy which accords pride of place to information technology and the internet This book also proposes that the particularities of technocultural Hindu nationalism need at the same time to be assessed with reference to the modalities of online communication Toward this end the book takes shape as an interdisciplinary endeavor combining qualitative and quantitative research methodologies and drawing on historical scholarship about South Asia social and cultural theory and the sociology of new media specifically the field of internet studies Technology and Nationalism in India is an important book for all in communication Internet studies South Asian studies and postcolonial studies Popular Media and Communication Stuart Price,Karen Ross,2009-05-05 This collection of essays has its origins in the MeCCSA 2007 conference held in Coventry in January that year Like most edited volumes which emerge from conference contexts this one comprises a richly diverse set of original papers which span the various themes and topics which together make up the fascinating field of media and communication The book is broadly divided into four sections media public media workers and professional identity media industries and policy concerns and political communication The first section looks at the transformation of the private and public spheres through new technologies and the phenomenon and implications of audience mediated genres such as reality TV The second part of the book looks at media practice from the point of view of both content and the self policing of professional norms The third part considers media policy including gender issues within the Scottish creative industries and the history and future of the BBC charter The last section looks a political communication and essays here are concerned with elite political rhetoric together with a consideration of the internet s impact on political activism The editors believe that within the wide ranging subject matter our authors have considered a common theme emerges This is the way in which contemporary communication acts are structured by a number of closely related forces capital technology social norms resistive practices and gendered subjectivity all contribute to the production of public meaning
