Encoded Archival Description on the Internet Wendy Duff, Daniel V Pitti, 2004-12-20 Archivists and librarians here is the perfect introduction to archival description and its latest technological applications Encoded Archival Description on the Internet introduces a variety of perspectives that will assist you in deciding whether EAD is an appropriate tool in a given context and if it is provides the knowledge you need to begin planning organizing and implementing projects and programs in your library This informative book shows how archival description differs from bibliographic description presents EAD as a standard and shows its relation to the MARC format and other standards discusses implementation issues examines museum use of EAD gives you an overview of the history of the development of EAD explores the reference implications of EAD discusses implications for nontraditional users examines the concept of union universal access to archives EAD version 1 0 was formally released by the Society of American Archivists and the Library of Congress Network Development and MARC Standards Office in autumn 1998 Since then a great number of institutions have invested significant time and money to prepare for implementation of EAD programs The most compelling reason for EAD s success is that in the words of Editors Pitti and Duff Archivists recognize in EAD their shared principles and practice and have embraced EAD not as a full realization of all of their expectations but as common ground upon which they can negotiate and realize the future of one of the profession s central responsibilities Encoded Archival Description on the Internet shows how EAD will not only benefit the public but also librarians and archivists It describes how information professionals will now be able to easily share information about complementary records and collections and to virtually integrate collections related by provenance but dispersed administratively or by geographic distance

Archives and Manuscripts, 2002 Business Processes Angelika Menne-Haritz, 2006-02-04 Collaborative decision making processes are a form of communication inside organizations Their functioning can teach lessons for the design of electronic office systems Those processes are open ended and therefore decide themselves on their form Like oral deliberations which cannot be modelled in advance any open ended communication process needs means for common control over the further advancement and the ending of the process The history of German administrative practice and its special methods of using disposals for the control of common processes shows the creation of records as based on communication needs generated by the intention of joint actions For electronic decision making processes the purposes remain the same but the means have to follow the effects of electronic communication on messages The book is a reworked English version of a thesis for the official qualification for university professorship accepted by the German University of Administrative Sciences Speyer Germany

Understanding Information Retrieval Systems Marcia J. Bates, 2011-12-20 In order to be effective for their users information retrieval IR systems should be adapted to the specific needs of particular environments The huge and growing array of types of information retrieval systems in use today is on display in Understanding Information Retrieval Systems Management Types and Standards which addresses over 20 types of IR systems These various system types in turn present both technical and management challenges which are also addressed in this volume In order to be interoperable in a networked environment IR systems must be able to use various types of technical standards a number of which are described in this book often by their original developers The book covers the full context of operational IR systems addressing not only the systems themselves but also human user search behaviors user centered design and management and policy issues In addition to theory and practice of IR system design the book covers Web standards and protocols the Semantic Web XML information retrieval Web social mining search engine optimization specialized museum and library online access records compliance and risk management information storage technology geographic information systems and data transmission protocols Emphasis is given to information systems that operate on relatively unstructured data such as text images and music The book is organized into four parts Part I supplies a broad level introduction to information systems and information retrieval systems Part II examines key management issues and elaborates on the decision process around likely information system solutions Part III illustrates the range of information retrieval systems in use today discussing the technical operational and administrative issues for each type Part IV discusses the most important organizational and technical standards needed for successful information retrieval This volume brings together authoritative articles on the different types of information systems and how to manage real world demands such as digital asset management network management digital content licensing data quality and information system failures It explains how to design systems to address human characteristics and considers key policy and ethical issues such as piracy and preservation Focusing on web based systems the chapters in this book provide an excellent starting point for developing and managing your own IR systems
