Fierke, Knud Erik Jørgensen, 1999 Strategies for Research in Constructivist International Relations Audie Klotz, Cecelia M. Lynch, 2014-12-18 Constructivism's basic premise that individuals and groups are shaped by their world but can also change it may seem intuitively true Yet this process oriented approach can be more difficult to apply than structural or rational choice frameworks Based on their own experiences and exemplars from the IR literature well known authors Audie Klotz and Cecelia Lynch lay out concepts and tools for anyone seeking to apply the constructivist approach in research Written in jargon free prose and relevant across the social sciences this book is essential for anyone trying to sort out appropriate methods for empirical research Language, Agency, and Politics in a Constructed World François Debrix, 2015-05-20 Language matters in international relations Constructivists have contributed the insight that global politics is shaped by the way agents narrate history and produce discourses about themselves and about the world This insight has induced a profound reexamination of assumptions in the study of international relations The contributors to this volume examine Part I the critical linguistic discursive techniques of postmodernists and constructivists and apply them Part II to international relations Language, Agency, and Politics in a Constructed World François Debrix, 2003-05-29 Language matters in international relations Constructivists have contributed the insight that global politics is shaped by the way agents narrate history and produce discourses about themselves and about the world This insight has induced a profound reexamination of assumptions in the study of international relations The contributors to this volume examine Part I

European Union Communities of Practice Maren Hofius, 2022-12-22 This book provides a practice based analysis of European Union EU diplomacy and community building Unlike studies focusing on how EU community building proceeds centrally in Brussels this book turns to EU diplomacy in its bordering state of Ukraine At a time when the EU's internal cohesion is being put to the test this book provides novel insights into how feelings of belonging are produced amongst its members in the absence of a homogenous we Transcending the traditional dichotomy between macro structures and micro processes of interaction the book demonstrates that the EU's large scale community depends for its existence on practical instantiations of community building in distinct communities of practice Using the case of an EU diplomatic community of practice in Kyiv Ukraine takes these questions to the EU's margins highlighting that the boundaries of community are key sites in which community materialises The in depth case study identifies diplomats boundary work as the constitutive rule that makes the local community of practice cohere and create feelings of belonging to the large scale polity of the EU This book will be of interest to researchers of European studies as well as to those working on global cooperation and international relations more broadly The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution CC BY 4.0 license

Globalization Mahmood Monshipouri, Neil Englehart, Andrew J. Nathan, Kavita Philip, 2015-06-01 Both human rights and globalization are powerful ideas and processes capable of transforming the world in profound ways Notwithstanding their universal claims however the processes are constructed and they draw their power from the specific cultural and political contexts in which they are constructed Far from bringing about a harmonious cosmopolitan order they have stimulated conflict and opposition In the context of globalization as the idea of human rights has become universal its meaning has become one more terrain of struggle among groups with their own interests and goals Part I of this volume looks at political and cultural struggles to control the human rights regime that is the power to construct the universal claims that will prevail in a territory with respect to property the state the environment and women Part II examines the dynamics and counterdynamics of transnational networks in their interactions with local actors in Iran China and Hong Kong Part III looks at the prospects for fruitful human rights dialogue between competing universalisms that by definition are intolerant of contradiction and averse to compromise

Constructing America's Freedom Agenda for the Middle East Oz Hassan, 2013 This book explores how George W Bush s Freedom Agenda for the Middle East and North Africa was conceived and implemented as an American national interest from the Bush era right through to the initial stages of the Obama administration It highlights how the crisis presented by September 11 2001 led to regime change in Afghanistan and Iraq but more broadly how American policy towards the region had a softer imperial side which drew on broader economic theories of democratisation and modernisation The Freedom Agenda contained within it a prescribed method of combating terrorism but also a method of engaging with and reforming the entire Middle East region more broadly with many institutions seeking to use the opportunity to implement neo liberal market logics in the region Constructing America's Freedom Agenda for the Middle East highlights the particular understanding of freedom that underpins America's imperial project in the region a project trapped between a policy of democratisation and domination This book analyses the Freedom Agenda in significantly more depth than in available current literature and would be of interest to students and researchers of global politics and international foreign policy of recent years

The Social Construction of Climate Change Mary E. Pettenger, 2016-02-24 Individuals international organizations and states are calling for the world to confront climate change Efforts such as the Kyoto Protocol have produced intractable disputes and are deemed inadequate This volume adopts two constructivist perspectives norm centred and discourse to explore the social construction of climate change from a broad theoretical level to particular cases The contributors contend that climate change must be understood from the context of social settings and that we ignore at our peril how power and knowledge structures are generated They offer a greater understanding of why current efforts to mitigate climate change have failed and provide academics and policy makers with a new understanding of this important topic

The New Agenda for International Relations Stephanie Lawson, 2013-07-08 There have been significant political eras which have shaped not only the structure of world politics but the way in which it has been studied The geopolitical and ideological contours of the Cold War period for example had an impact on almost every aspect of world politics and the study of international relations for around 45 years This book argues that just as the collapse of the Soviet Union in the period following the fall of the Berlin Wall signalled the end of strategic polarization it also marked the apparent end of a particular form of polarized debate around political social and economic ideas The various new directions taken by scholars of international relations in the post Cold War era constitute a large part of a new agenda for the discipline This collection reflects the variety of issues and approaches that have become part and parcel of this agenda over the past ten years Issues tackled in this volume include the power of culture and ideology the concept of globalisation inequality human rights and security as well as reflections on new forms of polarization in the post Cold War world Each contributor addresses the nature of changes and continuities in world politics considers how the discipline of international relations itself has changed and reflects on possible directions for the twenty first Century This book will be of great interest to scholars of international relations global politics economics and related disciplines
