Nexus Between Innovations, Environmental Challenges and Labor Mobility Irfan Ullah, Ashfaq Ahmad Shah, Bilal, Rocky J. Dwyer, 2024-01-15. Theoretical arguments associate labor migration and regional innovation capacity are based on technological innovation and knowledge diffusion that stimulate productivity increase in firms, institutions, and regions. Labor mobility may contribute efficiently in the knowledge spillover and diffusion, and because migrants can utilize the knowledge and skill they gain from parental institutions which exploit in the host country. The migrated skill worker increases the knowledge accumulation and spillover, which leads to increase the productivity of firm, institutions, and region. Human capital migration is essential for knowledge diffusion because it enables the transfer of tacit information between businesses or institutions, enhancing productivity. In this context of externalities, generation-skilled labor mobility is an important mechanism for the interregional transfer of technological knowledge diffusion.

Effects of Financial Globalization on Developing Countries Mr. Ayhan Kose, Mr. Kenneth Rogoff, Mr. Eswar Prasad, Shang-Jin Wei, 2003-09-03. This study provides a candid systematic and critical review of recent evidence on this complex subject. Based on a review of the literature and some new empirical evidence, it finds that: 1) in spite of an apparently strong theoretical presumption, it is difficult to detect a strong and robust causal relationship between financial integration and economic growth; 2) contrary to theoretical predictions, financial integration appears to be associated with increases in consumption volatility both in absolute terms and relative to income volatility in many developing countries; and 3) there appear to be threshold effects in both of these relationships which may be related to absorptive capacity. Some recent evidence suggests that sound macroeconomic frameworks and, in particular, good governance are both quantitatively and qualitatively important in affecting developing countries' experiences with financial globalization.
