Dunkel-Schetter,2013-06-29 As a researcher whose work focuses largely on the causes and consequences of unwanted pregnancy I may appear to be an unlikely candidate to write a foreword to a book on infertility Yet many of the themes that emerge in the study of unwanted pregnancy are also apparent in the study of infertility Moreover this volume is an important contribution to the literature on fertility women s health issues and health psychology in general all topics with which I have been closely involved over the past two decades Neither pregnancy nor its absence is inherently desirable The occurrence of a pregnancy can be met with joy or despair and its absence can be a cause of relief or anguish Whether or not these states are wanted the conscious and unconscious meanings attached to pregnancy and in fertility the responses of others the perceived implications of these states and one's expectations for the future all are critical factors in determining an individual's response. In addition both unwanted pregnancy and failure to conceive can be socially stigmatized evoking both overt and subtle social disapproval. Further they involve not only the woman but her partner and potentially the extended family. Finally both of these reproductive issues have been poorly researched. Because both are emotionally charged and socially stigmatized events they are difficult to study. Much of the early literature relied on anecdotal or case reports.

Christian Couples Coping with Childlessness Auli Vahakangas, 2009-06-01 Children are the focus of marriage in African cultures Marriage is considered full and functional only if the couple has children in many cultures preferably a boy Becoming a parent also contributes to one's full adulthood in the sense that childlessness blocks ascent towards full personal dignity as an adult person in the community As a result childlessness is often a major disaster for both of the spouses It has social economical and personal consequences quite often including divorce This book explores in depth how childlessness is perceived dealt with and coped with in two Christian communities in Machame on the slopes of Mt Kilimanjaro Childlessness is approached through narratives of the spouses concerned and the members of their communities Their stories reveal pain and courage brokenness and strength faithfulness and betrayal Christianity presents itself in an ambiguous light on one hand pressuring spouses to keep up facades supporting oppressive structures On the other hand Christian faith provides childless couples with personal hope in the afterlife that the African traditional culture offers only to those with children This study proves that childlessness is not only a personal but also a communal problem Childlessness and the fear of having no children contribute to family structures and sexual behavior In this way they have a considerable impact on the spread of HIV AIDS in Africa However this study reveals that the attitudes and practices towards marriage and children need not be petrified but rather that traditions can and do change
