Lung Cancer: Basic and Clinical Aspects Heine H. Hansen, 2012-12-06 Lung cancer is one of the biggest challenges in oncology today The challenge is due to the recognition of the possibility of prevention in at least 70 80 % of all the cases and the extreme difficulties encountered in the treatment of this neoplasm Despite the knowledge of prevention measures such as cessation of cigarette smoking the incidence continues to increase in many countries The increase is particularly notable in females in the westernized countries where the death rate in females in certain regions surpasses that of breast cancer Furthermore in many developing countries lung cancer is now being diagnosed with increasing frequency in both sexes and it is expected to be a major cause of death in those countries later in this century or the beginning of next century if the tobacco consumption will continue its rapid rise With respect to therapy the 1970 es brought considerable progress in understanding of the clinical behaviour of lung cancer thereby establishing the importance of distinguishing between the major histologic types Therapeutic advancement was particularly experienced in small cell carcinoma with the introduction of combination chemotherapy after this special disease entity among lung cancers was recognized as being a disseminated disease in almost all cases at the time of diagnosis It was expected that the improvement in therapy would have continued in the early 1980 es not only for small cell lung cancer but also for the other cell types

Basic Biology of New Developments in Biotechnology Alexander Hollaender, 2012-12-06 Allen I Laskin Biosciences Research Exxon Research and Engineering Company Linden New Jersey I was contacted in the Fall of 1981 by Professors Martin Dworkin and Palmer Rogers of the University of Minnesota and asked to participate in the organization of the 1983 conference in the series Interface Between Biology and Medicine They and the other members of the advisory committee had the vision to realize that this was a time to depart somewhat from the traditional theme since one of the major areas of interest in the biological and related sciences these days is that of biotechnology in a broader sense than its impact on medicine alone In designing the format of the Conference we considered another factor There has been a plethora of conferences symposia and meetings on biotechnology over the past few years and the faces and topics have become rather familiar There has been a strong emphasis on the development of the technology and the biotechnology industry less attention has been paid to the science behind it One might get the impression from some of these meetings and from the popular press that biotechnology has just recently sprung up apparently full blown the very fundamental scientific discoveries and the great body of 1 ALLEN I LASKIN 2 continuing research that forms that basis for the technology is often obscured
