Phillips,2012-12-06 In 1988 we presented our Guide to Bone Marrow Transplantation The reception has been enthusiastic and we have received a flood of critical comments suggestions and requests to provide an update in due time Although several books on marrow transplantation have recently been published their scope and goal have generally been different Hence we have decided to prepare a second edition of the Guide Our aim was to maintain a short concise text which nevertheless would incorporate changes that have occurred over the past four or five years We have streamlined the description of pretransplant considerations by condensing two sections into one Treatment Planning and Timing of Transplantation This also facilitated the review of controversial indications for marrow transplantation for example in patients with acute myelogenous leukemia in first chemotherapy induced remission We have updated the chapter dealing with conditioning regimens and have expanded the section on donor selection in particular in regard to the current level of tissue typing and the identification of unrelated volunteer donors In the chapter on collection processing and infusion of marrow we have incorporated recent developments for example the use of closed systems for marrow harvesting and processing and the use of solid phase separation of stem cells Bone Marrow Transplantation in Practice Jennifer Treleaven,Austin John

Barrett,1992 This text aims to represent current transplantation practice across the whole discipline covering autologous and allogenic transplantation and malignant and non malignant disorders There are two sections the first covers the place of BMT in treatment while the second deals with the practical aspects from pre transplant work ups to long term follow up It covers step by step procedures in all aspects of patient care and has been written for all members of the bone marrow transplant team Blood and Marrow Transplantation Long Term Management Bipin N. Blood and Marrow Transplantation Long Term Management Hematopoietic cell transplantation HCT provides curative therapy for a variety of diseases Over the past several decades significant advances have been made in the field of HCT to the point where HCT has become an integral part of treatment modality for a variety of hematologic malignancies and some nonmalignant diseases HCT remains an important treatment option for a wide variety of hematologic and nonhematologic disorders despite recent advances in the field of immunologic therapies Factors driving this growth include expanded disease indications greater donor options expanding unrelated donor registries and haploidentical HCT and accommodation of older and less fit recipients The development of less toxic pretransplant conditioning regimens more effective prophylaxis of graft versus host disease GVHD improved infection control and other advances in transplant technology have resulted in a rapidly growing number of transplant recipients surviving long term free of the disease for which they were transplanted The changes over decades in the transplant recipient population and in the practice of HCT will have almost inevitably altered the composition of the long term survivor population over time Apart from an increasingly older transplant recipient cohort the pattern of transplant indications has shifted from the 1990s when chronic myeloid leukemia made up a significant proportion of allo HCT indications Changes in cell source donor types conditioning regimens GVHD prophylaxis and supportive care have all occurred with ongoing reductions in both relapse and non relapse mortality NRM have been demonstrated These patients have increased risks for a variety of late complications which can cause morbidity and mortality Most long term survivors return to the care of their local hematologists oncologists or primary care physicians who may not be familiar with specialized monitoring and management of long complications after HCT for this patient population As HCT survivorship increases the focus of care has shifted to the identification and treatment of long term complications that may affect quality of life and long term morbidity and mortality Preventive care as well as early detection and treatments are important aspects to reducing morbidity and mortality in long term survivors after allo HCT This second edition Blood and Marrow Transplantation Long Term Management Survivorship after Transplant provides up to date information about diagnosis screening treatment and long term surveillance of long term survivors after HCT

Bone Marrow Transplantation Across Major Genetic Barriers Yair Reisner,Massimo Fabrizio Martelli,Robertson Parkman,2010-09-27 The importance of bone marrow transplantation for patients who do not have a matched sibling donor cannot be overestimated This subject has always been in the public domain accentuated by dramatic appeals from time to time to search for matched volunteer donors in the public at large Unfortunately the availability of such donors is limited due to the remarkable genetic diversity of humans Thus although registries of such volunteers now include more than eight million individuals we still face the problem of finding a matched donor for about 30% of patients in need To address this burning issue extensive clinical and basic research is performed in leading institutes around the world This book presents updated accounts of the different aspects of this research The scope of the book is very wide including strategies to overcome graft vs host GVH disease and graft rejection cell therapy to prevent leukemia relapse and a range of modalities to improve immune reconstitution after transplantation In addition new approaches to induce immune tolerance towards organ transplants by means of hematopoietic stem cell transplantation are extensively reviewed

Joachim Deeg, Hans-Georg Klingemann, Gordon L. Phillips, Gary Van Zant, 2011-06-28 The first edition to A Guide to Bone Marrow Transplantation was published 10 years ago At that time we perceived a need for an introductory text to the area of marrow transplantation a rapidly developing field with few general texts available Since then the situation has changed dramatically Several introductory texts therapeutic manuals and comprehensive volumes have been published There is a heightened awareness of the availability utility and potential of bone marrow transplantation and of peripheral blood stem cell transplantation in particular In many cases stem cell transplantation is being practiced by physicians as a standard therapy For those reasons we weighed carefully the question whether the Guide was still useful or even had a place The feedback we received from physicians in practice or in training including both hematologists and other physicians as well as from nurses physician assistants nurse practitioners and other personnel involved in one way or another in hematopoietic stem cell transplantation indicated that such a text was still desirable as an introduction that focused on principles rather than the latest up to date results
