

Weaving Techniques

BUTTERFLYING

Some of the wefts you will work with are very long. If left hanging free, they can tangle and interfere with the weaving process. We suggest making bundles or butterflies to get them out of the way. See Fig. A. The end held by the little finger is the pulling end which releases the yarn for use.

TABBY WEAVING

This is the most common type of weaving. In our instructions, we will simply refer to it as "weaving." It is done by going over and under the warp threads with the weft thread. Each row alternates with that before it. See Fig. B. Use a beater or comb to pack the threads together tightly. Always try and keep the outside warps parallel. To do this, weave at a slight bubble shape and then beat down. See Fig. C.

A shuttle is necessary to pull the wefts through the warp on some projects. You might consider buying a hand-carved comb to use as a beater, but a kitchen fork or wide-tooth comb works just as well.

Here is a sampler of all the different techniques used in our projects. You might consider making a sampler before starting on your first project to practice the weaves and get a feel for the yarns.
