Coping with Life Crises Rudolf Moos, 2013-12-20

This book examines new developments in the area of human competence and coping behavior. It sets forth a conceptual framework that considers the interplay between environmental contexts and personal resources and their impact on how individuals cope with life transitions and crises. The selections cover the tasks confronted in varied life crises and describe the coping strategies employed in managing them. The material identifies the long-term effects of such life events as divorce and bereavement as well as the way in which these stressors can promote personal growth and maturity. The book contains a broad selection of recent literature on coping and adaptation, integrative commentaries that provide the background for each of the areas as well as conceptual linkages among them and an introductory overview that presents a general perspective on human competence and coping. Illustrative case examples are included. The first part of the book is organized chronologically according to developmental life transitions confronted by many people from the childhood years through adolescence, career choice and parenthood, divorce and remarriage, middle age and retirement and death and bereavement. The second part covers unusual life crises and other hazards that typically involve extreme stress such as man-made and natural disasters and terrorism. The book highlights effective coping behavior among healthy individuals rather than psychological breakdown and psychiatric symptoms. The emphasis is on successful adaptation, the ability to cope with life transitions and crises and the process by which such success occurs.

PREFACE

Across Generations Nancy Foner, 2009-05-01 Immigrants and their American-born children represent about one quarter of the United States population. Drawing on rich in-depth ethnographic research, the fascinating case studies in Across Generations examine the intricacies of relations between the generations in a broad range of immigrant groups from Latin America, Asia, the Caribbean and Africa, and give a sense of what everyday life is like in immigrant families. Moving beyond the cliché of the children of immigrants engaging in pitched battles against tradition-bound parents from the old country, these vivid essays offer a nuanced view that brings out the ties that bind the generations as well as the tensions that divide them. Tackling key issues like parental discipline, marriage choices, educational and occupational expectations, legal status and transnational family ties, Across Generations brings crucial insights to our understanding of the United States as a nation of immigrants.

Stress and Coping of English Learners Teresa Rishel, Paul Chamness, Iida, 2018-03-01 Stress and Coping of English Learners addresses the many ways that ELs face academic and socioemotional stress in the K-12 school environment, the consequences of this stress at school, how they cope with this stress, and how school personnel and families can provide support and help. While enrollment in school programs offers assistance to many ELs, it often fails to provide the socioemotional support that ELs need as they navigate the rough waters of schooling. American schooling is often not prepared and/or unwilling to help ELs as they adapt to an unfamiliar language, culture, social norms, communication techniques, and teachers' expectations. Given the proper foundation and emotional support, ELs will be positioned for greater academic success, comfort at school, and a decrease in their sense of alienation in both the school environment and at home as they try to negotiate between two cultural environments.
