Research Training in Psychiatry Residency Committee on Incorporating Research into Psychiatry Residency Training., 2003-12-23 The number of psychiatric researchers does not seem to be keeping pace with the needs and opportunities that exist in brain and behavioral medicine An Institute of Medicine committee conducted a broad review of the state of patient oriented research training in the context of the psychiatry residency and considered the obstacles to such training and strategies for overcoming those obstacles Careful consideration was given to the demands of clinical training The committee concluded that barriers to research training span three categories regulatory institutional and personal factors Recommendations to address these issues are presented in the committee's report including calling for research literacy requirements and research training curricula tailored to psychiatry residency programs of various sizes The roles of senior investigators and departmental leadership are emphasized in the report as is the importance of longitudinal training e g from medical school through residency and fellowship As there appears to be great interest among numerous stakeholders and a need for better tracking data an overarching recommendation calls for the establishment of a national body to coordinate and evaluate the progress of research training in psychiatry

Psychological Concepts and Biological Psychiatry Peter Zachar, 2000-11-23 This interdisciplinary work addresses the question What role should psychological conceptualization play for thinkers who believe that the brain is the organ of the mind It offers readers something unique both by systematically comparing the writings of eliminativist philosophers of mind with the writings of the most committed proponents of biological psychiatry and by critically scrutinizing their shared anti anthropomorphism from the standpoint of a diagnostician and therapist Contradicting the contemporary assumption that common sense psychology has already been proven futile and we are just waiting for an adequate scientifically based replacement this book provides explicit philosophical and psychological arguments showing why if they did not already have both cognitive and psychodynamic psychologies philosophers and scientists would have to invent them to better understand brains Series A
