Day, John Lough, 2012-02 How to Win fills an important gap in the current leadership literature in that it gets down and dirty with the very real issues that first time managers face in today's workplace. These new leaders don't craft long term strategies or issue inspiring missives to hundreds of eager troops. Neither do they testify before congressional committees nor appear as public spokespersons for this or that glamorous product. They are the managers who strive each day often with limited resources to meet the high production standards set by those in the C-suite. From how to manage relationships with direct reports who used to be that manager's peers to how to delegate tasks to how to build effective teams and better manage one's time How to Win takes the reader into the daily exchanges between a new manager and her veteran coach as they explore the various roles all managers are expected to play. Wasserman,P. Freeman,2012-12-06 Software engineering is a term which was coined in the late 1960 s as the theme for a workshop on the problems involved in producing software that could be developed economically and would run reliably on real machines Even now software engineering is more of a wish than a reality but the last few years have seen an increased awareness of the need to apply an engineering type discipline to the design and construction of software systems Many new proposals have been made for the management of software development and maintenance and many methodologies have been suggested for improving the programming process As these problems and solutions become better understood there is a growing need to teach these concepts to students and to practicing professionals As a prelude to the educational process it is necessary to gain an understanding of the software design and development process in industry and government to define the appropriate job categories and to identify the fundamental content areas of software engineering The need for quality education in software engineering is now recognized by practitioners and educators alike and various educational endeavors in this area are now being formulated Yet discussions we had had over the past year or so led us to believe that there was insufficient contact between practitioners and educators with the resultant danger that each group would go off in separate ways rather than working together Household Manual, Guidelines and Standards , Adaptive
