A Biologic Approach to Environmental Assessment and Epidemiology Thomas J. Smith,David Kriebel,2010-06-24 In this book Thomas J Smith and David Kriebel assert that important advances in the quantification of environmental risks can only come through a true synthesis of the fields of environmental epidemiology and exposure assessment They have built a common biologic model of exposure physiologic response and disease a synthesis of the various existing models which serves to both simplify and improve the application of environmental epidemiology and exposure assessment to current and future environmental chemical risks

The Camp Fire Girls Jennifer Helgren,2022-12 As the twentieth century dawned progressive educators established a national organization for adolescent girls to combat what they believed to be a crisis of girls education A corollary to the Boy Scouts of America founded just a few years earlier the Camp Fire Girls became America s first and for two decades most popular girls organization Based on Protestant middle class ideals a regulatory model that reinforced hygiene habit formation hard work and the idea that women related to the nation through service the Camp Fire Girls invented new concepts of American girlhood by inviting disabled girls Black girls immigrants and Native Americans to join Though this often meant a false sense of cultural universality in the girls own hands membership was often profoundly empowering and provided marginalized girls spaces to explore the meaning of their own cultures in relation to changes taking place in twentieth century America Through the lens of the Camp Fire Girls Jennifer Helgren traces the changing meanings of girls citizenship in the cultural context of the twentieth century Drawing on girls scrapbooks photographs letters and oral history interviews in addition to adult voices in organization publications and speeches The Camp Fire Girls explores critical intersections of gender race class nation and disability

Tourism and National Parks Warwick Frost,C. Michael Hall,2012-08-21 In 1872 Yellowstone was established as a National Park The name caught the public s imagination and by the close of the century other National Parks had been declared not only in the USA but also in Australia Canada and New Zealand Yet as it has spread the concept has evolved and diversified In the absence of any international controlling body individual countries have been free to adapt the concept for their own physical social and economic environments Some have established national parks to protect scenery others to protect ecosystems or wildlife Tourism has also been a fundamental component of the national parks concept from the beginning and predates ecological justifications for national park establishment though it has been closely related to landscape conservation rationales at the outset Approaches to tourism and visitor management have varied Some have stripped their parks of signs of human settlement while increasingly others are blending natural and cultural heritage and reflecting national identities. This edited volume explores in detail the origins and multiple meanings of National Parks and their relationship to tourism in a variety of national contexts. It consists of a series of introductory overview chapters followed by case study chapters from around the world including insights from the US, Canada, Australia, UK, Spain, France, Sweden, Indonesia, China, and Southern Africa. Taking a global comparative approach, this book examines how and why national parks have spread and evolved, how they have been fashioned and used, and the integral role of tourism within national parks. The volume's focus on the long-standing connection between tourism and national parks and the changing concept of national parks over time and space give the book a distinct niche in the national parks and tourism literature. The volume is expected to contribute not only to tourism and national park studies at the upper level, undergraduate and graduate levels, but also to courses in international and comparative environmental history, conservation studies, and outdoor recreation management.
